Youth hurt in hit-run accident

NEW MADRID — A 19-year-old Lilbourn youth was injured early Saturday when he was struck by a car which left the scene near the New Madrid Community Building, according to New Madrid police officers.

According to witnesses, Al Mitchem received possible leg injuries when a car he was standing behind backed up and pinned him against another car, then sped away.

The witnesses said the incident occured when an unidentified man was quarreling with a woman, possibly his girl friend, while sitting in a white 1973 Dodge Charger with an orange stripe. When the discussion became heated, the man threw the car into reverse, striking Mitchem, who was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital at Sikeston.

Neither the driver of the hit-and-run car nor the woman had been identified Saturday night.

The incident occurred at 12:20 a.m.

Couple hurt when car hits pillar

William Levell Clifton and his wife Wanda, Jon Don Trailer Court, were pinned in their car Saturday night after it struck the concrete pillar at right, but apparently escaped with minor injuries. Both were treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston for shock, and Clifton had a cervical collar put on him at the scene as a precaution. Miner Marshal, Bob Davis, who investigated the accident, said Clifton was driving east on Highway 62 and ran into the pillar at the overpass where Highway 62 runs under Inerstate 55 about 7:11 p.m. Clifton and his wife were removed from the smashed car by the Sikeston Volunteer Emergency Rescue Squad.

Carter praised for caution on economic policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the economy gives off mixed signals, President-elect Jimmy Carter's wait-and-see attitude toward tax cuts and spending programs is winning him bipartisan praise.

Carter's aides say he will not adopt any economic policies that would commit his Cabinet to a course of action they didn't have a hand in shaping.

But equally important, in the minds of many, is that the economy is in such an uncertain state that it would be a mistake to decide on any new policy at this point.

Carter and his aides will look closely at December statistics on unemployment, industrial output and business indicators — all of which were unfavorable in October and November — for clues on what direction the economy may take.

Carter has said he will consider recommending a tax cut and other measures to stimulate the economy if the slowdown continues. Although some of his advisers have stated publicly what they want him to do, Carter has refused to be pinned down.

Carter's cautious approach drew praise this past week from Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board and Chairman Alan Greenspan of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

6 injured in 3 area traffic accidents

Six motorists were injured Friday and Saturday in three traffic accidents on Southeast Missouri roads.

The highway patrol reported that Janet M. Massey, 29, of Belleville, Ill., suffered moderate injuries when bright lights from an approaching car blinded her and her car ran off the road on a curve and hit a culvert. The accident occurred at 7:45 p.m. Friday 10 miles north of Poplar Bluff on Highway 67.

Two passengers in the Massey car, Patricia Cobb, 9, and Susan M. Goforth, 7, of Belleville, received minor injuries. All three were treated at Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Onieta Bertha Brown, 47, of East Prairie received moderate injuries when the accelerator on her car apparently stuck as she was coming out of a private drive, causing her auto to cross a gravel road and run into a ditch.

The accident happened at 2 p.m. Friday on an unmarked county road two miles west of East Prairie.

She was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Two men suffered minor injuries in an accident at 4:30 p.m. Saturday on Route W one and a half miles north of Cape Girardeau.

John Randle, 58, of Springfield, Ill., slowed for a dense cloud of lime dust and his car was hit from behind by a car driven by Irmgard Miller, 36, of Jackson. Both were traveling north on Route W.

Miller and a passenger in the Randle car, James Randle, 21, of Springfield, were taken to St. Francis Medical Center in Cape Girardeau.

N. Dame drops Kelly as mistakes prevail

DIEHLSTADT — Two outstanding basketball teams met in the crowded Kelly High gym Friday night, then proceeded to disappoint the capacity crowd with a generally lackluster performance. The Cape-Notre Dame Bulldogs came away from the fray with a 56-47 win in the season opener for both sides, but neither team had much to be proud of when considering performances.

Notre Dame owned the boards most of the night, scored the first bucket and led the entire way. Only late in the game, when the Bulldogs let up and Kelly was able to cut a few notches from the lead, did the score become "respectable." After building a 19-point, 46-27 lead with just under a minute of the third period left, Notre Dame faltered. Chalk it up to fatigue, over-confidence, reserves, or the Kelly Hawks finally finding their game, the visiting Bulldogs were outscored the rest of the way 20-10, including 18-10 in the fourth period.

Rick Dohogne, 5-7 senior Bulldog guard, led all scorers with 19 points from his guard spot. Welter scored a dozen and Goodson ten to complete Notre Dame two-figure scoring. Randy Hagar, a 6-5 postman, led Kelly scorers with 14.

Neither side fouled excessively, but coach Nick Lanpher of the Hawks was dismayed by his lackluster defense and the ease with which the Dogs were able to penetrate it. Kelly shot well below 40 percent on the night and the Bulldogs hit a like ratio of shots.

Both super-talented squads showed promise for the future and, at the same time, a great need for extensive work on several severely lacking areas. The game that was billed as a matchup of two of the area's finest outfits was a big letdown to many who attended, especially the enthusiastic throng from Kelly. Their enthusiasm and outstanding support of their team was evident, although fading at the end. Neither side dhowed a great deal to the onlookers, but both showed enough to guarantee that their supporters will return.

Notre Dame raced to a 59-41 B game win, also.

Hornet machine back; Advance swarms Oran

ADVANCE — The Advance Hornets showed signs of the same explosive play that took them to the state tournament three years out of four Friday night as they scored 53 points in the first half and then coasted to a 91-47 victory over a good Oran Eagle squad at Advance. It was the third straight victory in a row for the Hornets, who opened the season with a loss to defending state champion Scott Central.

"This is the best we've played so far," said Advance coach Carroll Cookson, who watched six of his players score in double figures.

Advance came out pressing-- a trademark of the Hornet teams during the dynasty period of 1972-75. Cashing in on numerous turnovers and whipping the slower Eagles on the transition from offense to defense, Advance ran up a 26-10 first period lead. They continued to pour it on in the second period, leading by 30 late in the period and taking a 53-28 advantage into the locker room at the intermission.

Advance reserves did most of the playing in the third quarter as several Hornet starters sat on the bench in foul trouble. After scoring only 12 points in the third, they came back buzzing in the fourth to score 26 more and complete the rout. Nine of the ten players on the Advance roster scored, with junior Mark Robins leading the way with 22 points.

Soph quarterback helps Kansas dump Missouri

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Mark Vicendese threw for one touchdown and ran for another Saturday as the Kansas Jayhawks broke loose for 24 points in the second quarter to shock 19th-ranked Missouri, 41-14, in Big Eight football action.

The victory was Kansas' fifth in six games in the oldest football rivalry west of the Mississippi and virtually eliminated Missouri's postseason bowl chances.

The Jayhawks, nationally ranked until losing quarterback Nolan Cromwell at midseason, dominated the contest from the second period as Vicendese brought their wishbone to life with a variety of option runs and pitches.

Kansas boasted a 10-0 lead when Bill Campfield blasted 28 yards down the left sidelines to give the Jayhawks a 17-point advantage. Vicendese, who finished with 111 yards, made it 24-0 with a two-yard pass to Jim Michaels with two seconds left in the half.

Mike Hubach's 49-yard field goal with 7:02 left in the third period further padded Kansas' margin, then Vicendese burst in from the one yard line with 5:41 left in the third quarter to make it 34-0.

Kansas, the victim of 10 turnovers a week eaarlier against Colorado, played virtually error-free football in ending its season at 2-5 in the Big Eight and 6-5 over-all.

The Tigers, 3-4 and 6-5, did little right after fumbling on the Kansas 15 early in the first quarter, surrendering two interceptions and dropping several key passes before Lamont Downer scored on a 19-yard Pete Woods pass with 5:28 left in the game.

It was the worst loss to Kansas since a 32-0 drubbing in 1932 for the Tigers, who had beaten Southern California, Ohio State and Nebraska this year and were being considered for the Sun Bowl and Tangerine Bowl.

The only Kansas mistake of note was a fumble by the Vicendese on the Missouri 14 early in the second period. But the Jayhawks, who rolled up 421 yards rushing, already had a three point lead on Hubach's 29-yard field goal and made it 10-0 when Skip Sharp picked off a Steve Pisarkiewicz pass and raced 46 yards untouched to the end zone.

Kansas running star Laverne Smith added 151 yards to the Kansas attack to end his career with 3,192 yards, third best in Big Eight history.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Young Mark Vicendese, taking a giant step toward filling the shoes of Kansas legend Nolan Cromwell, brought the wild Missouri roller coaster to a screeching halt Saturday.

"Mark Vicendese executed well. He made the difference," declared Kansas Coach Bud Moore after his Jayhawks stunned 19th-ranked Missouri 41-14. "He's not a quitter."

Vicendese, starting only his second game at quarterback, scampered for 111 yards as the Jayhawk wishbone shredded Missouri for 421 yards rushing. It was a far cry from his fumble-ridden debut a week ago against Colorado.

"I make mistakes and learn from them," said the 6-foot-1, 175-pound sophomore. "We just did what the defense dictated and they gave us a run. The backs did it all."

There was an air of vindication in the Kansas dressing room as the Jayhawks, 2-5 in Big Eight play and 6-5 over-all, snapped a three-game losing streak. The victory gave Kansas is first consecutive winning season since 1962.

"This was a great victory because of the situation we were in," said Moore. "I'm proud of our young men. They overcame difficulties and played well."

But there was only confusion and dejection among the Tigers, who had lost to another wishbone team, Oklahoma, the week before.

"We're all disappointed in the way we played," admitted Coach Al Onofrio, whose team finished at 3-4 and 6-5.

"We didn't seem tight. We looked like we were approaching the game well. But I don't think you ever know."

Possibly the most deflated was quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz, who started his last game for Missouri and contributed to two Kansas' touchdowns with first half interceptions.

"We were ready, perhaps too ready. Without Leo (Lewis, out with a broken leg) it obviously hurt," said Pisarkiewicz. "Without him, they were able to key on Joe (Stewart). He's our big man, so naturally they had him double-covered."

Stewart was the only bright spot for Missouri, snaring seven passes for 67 yards to end the year with 45 catches, a Tiger record.

Mike Hubach tied the Kansas season record of seven field goals with boots of 29 and 49 yards, the last another Jayhawk mark.

Skins and Cardinals in NFC East showdown

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Remember Mel Gray's official-ruled catch? Remember the "Mud Bowl?"

Neither may mean much to most National Football League teams, but they'll serve as added incentive for the Washington Redskins and St. Louis Cardinals in their 3 p.m. CST meeting today.

Of obvious importance to both teams is the NFC playoff picture, from which the Redskins will be eliminated should they lose. But there are those memories.

The Cardinals, 8-2, still smart from the embarrassment of giving up an NFL record eight fumbles in a 20-10 loss to the Redskins before a Monday night television audience last month.

"They're gonna get what's coming to 'em this time," vowed running back Terry Metcalf, who lost four of the fumbles on a muddy RFK Stadiumfield.

And Washington still recalls a controversial pass reception her last season that led to a Cardinal victory which was instrumental in eliminating the Redskins from the playoffs for the first time in five years.

Washington Coach George Alden, although downfallen after his team was upset last Sunday by the New York Giants, 12-9, still finds a glimmer of hope in the Redskins' 7-4 season.

"We still feel we have a chance. It is still in our hands," Allen said. "We have to do it ourselves. We haven't had help from anyone else. It will take a great effort and we have to win the remaining four games."

The Cardinals, two-time NFC East champions, also view the contest as critical in light of a remaining schedule that includes NFC East-leading Dallas and AFC East-leading Baltimore.

"We can't afford to have a letdown," Cardinal Coach Don Coryell said, "the reason being, if we tied Washington with four losses apiece, we wouldn't have the wild card."

St. Louis has won three straight since the Washington loss, all by the margin of a Jim Bakken field goal. In one of the team's finest performances last Sunday, the Cardinals came from behind to nip Los Angeles 30-28 in the final seconds.

Washington's loss will make them a hungry competitor, Coryell predicted.

"I'm sure this will be an all-out effort on their part," he said. "There's no question they'll shoot everything possible to win. But I'm not concerned about knocking them out of the playoffs, I'm concerned about getting into the playoffs."

Jim Hart, who leads NFL quarterbacks with 2,218 yards passing, is expected to have wide receiver Mel Gray, the recipient of the controversial touchdown catch of 1975, back in his sights after missing two games with an injury, along with Ike Harris, the team's leading receiver with 41 catches.

Redskin quarterback Joe Thiesmann suffered a hip pointer in the loss to the Giants, but he is expected to be ready by Sunday. If he isn't, veteran Billy Kilmer is listed as healthy.

Tailback Mike Thomas enjoyed his second 100-yard game of the season last week for the Redskins and now has 759 yards, ranking him ninth in the NFL.

In Sunday's other games it's Los Angeles at San Francisco, Minnesota vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Oakland at Philadelphia, Dallas at Atlanta, Washington at St. Louis, Cincinnati at Kansas City, Houston at Pittsburgh, Cleveland at Tampa Bay, New England at the New York Jets, San Deigo at Buffalo, Chicago at Detroit, New Orleans at Seattle and the New York Giants at Denver. Monday night's game is Baltimore at Miami.

Both Minnesota and Oakland can win divisional titles Sunday. The Vikings of the NFC Central are 8-1-1 and poised to lock up their eighth crown in nine years. The Raiders, 9-1, are shoothing for their fifth straight title in the American Conference West.

With Dallas at 9-1 in the NFC East, Minnesota has its work cut out. The Raiders are being pursued for the AFC's winningest records by Baltimore in the East and Cincinnati in the Central, each at 8-2.

The Cowboys have spent most of the season shooting it out with St. Louis and Washington. They can retain their one game lead if the Cardinals, 8-2, shoot the Redskins, 6-4, out of the race. If the Skins pull off a mild upset St. Louis is a one-touchdown favorite and the Cowboys handle the Eagles, Dallas will be able to widen its edge to two games with three to play.

Chance of snow today at St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Coach Don Coryell, recalling the muddy conditions that marked the Cardinals' loss to Washington last month, said this week that "I just hope it won't rain" for Sunday's rematch in Busch Stadium.

It may do worse.

The weather bureau has forecast a 40 per cent chance of snow and temperatures in the upper 30s when the two National Football Conference rivals square off at 3 p.m. CST.

The Redskins, who defeated the Cardinals 20-10 during a rainy Monday night contest at RFK Stadium, must win Sunday to keep alive their hopes of an NFC playoff wild-card berth.

N. Dame drops Kelly as mistakes prevail

DIEHLSTADT — Two outstanding basketball teams met in the crowded Kelly High gym Friday night, then proceeded to disappoint the capacity crowd with a generally lackluster performance. The Cape-Notre Dame Bulldogs came away from the fray with a 56-47 win in the season opener for both sides, but neither team had much to be proud of when considering performances.

Notre Dame owned the boards most of the night, scored the first bucket and led the entire way. Only late in the game, when the Bulldogs let up and Kelly was able to cut a few notches from the lead, did the score become "respectable." After building a 19-point, 46-27 lead with just under a minute of the third period left, Notre Dame faltered. Chalk it up to fatigue, over-confidence, reserves, or the Kelly Hawks finally finding their game, the visiting Bulldogs were outscored the rest of the way 20-10, including 18-10 in the fourth period.

Rick Dohogne, 5-7 senior Bulldog guard, led all scorers with 19 points from his guard spot. Welter scored a dozen and Goodson ten to complete Notre Dame two-figure scoring. Randy Hagar, a 6-5 postman, led Kelly scorers with 14.

Neither side fouled excessively, but coach Nick Lanpher of the Hawks was dismayed by his lackluster defense and the ease with which the Dogs were able to penetrate it. Kelly shot well below 40 percent on the night and the Bulldogs hit a like ratio of shots.

Both super-talented squads showed promise for the future and, at the same time, a great need for extensive work on several severely lacking areas. The game that was billed as a matchup of two of the area's finest outfits was a big letdown to many who attended, especially the enthusiastic throng from Kelly. Their enthusiasm and outstanding support of their team was evident, although fading at the end. Neither side dhowed a great deal to the onlookers, but both showed enough to guarantee that their supporters will return.

Notre Dame raced to a 59-41 B game win, also.

But there was only confusion and dejection among the Tigers, who had lost to another wishbone team, Oklahoma, the week before.

"We're all disappointed in the way we played," admitted Coach Al Onofrio, whose team finished at 3-4 and 6-5.

"We didn't seem tight. We looked like we were approaching the game well. But I don't think you ever know."

Possibly the most deflated was quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz, who started his last game for Missouri and contributed to two Kansas' touchdowns with first half interceptions.

"We were ready, perhaps too ready. Without Leo (Lewis, out with a broken leg) it obviously hurt," said Pisarkiewicz. "Without him, they were able to key on Joe (Stewart). He's our big man, so naturally they had him double-covered."

Stewart was the only bright spot for Missouri, snaring seven passes for 67 yards to end the year with 45 catches, a Tiger record.

Mike Hubach tied the Kansas season record of seven field goals with boots of 29 and 49 yards, the last another Jayhawk mark.

Skins and Cardinals in NFC East showdown

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Remember Mel Gray's official-ruled catch? Remember the "Mud Bowl?"

Neither may mean much to most National Football League teams, but they'll serve as added incentive for the Washington Redskins and St. Louis Cardinals in their 3 p.m. CST meeting today.

Of obvious importance to both teams is the NFC playoff picture, from which the Redskins will be eliminated should they lose. But there are those memories.

The Cardinals, 8-2, still smart from the embarrassment of giving up an NFL record eight fumbles in a 20-10 loss to the Redskins before a Monday night television audience last month.

"They're gonna get what's coming to 'em this time," vowed running back Terry Metcalf, who lost four of the fumbles on a muddy RFK Stadiumfield.

And Washington still recalls a controversial pass reception her last season that led to a Cardinal victory which was instrumental in eliminating the Redskins from the playoffs for the first time in five years.

Washington Coach George Alden, although downfallen after his team was upset last Sunday by the New York Giants, 12-9, still finds a glimmer of hope in the Redskins' 7-4 season.

"We still feel we have a chance. It is still in our hands," Allen said. "We have to do it ourselves. We haven't had help from anyone else. It will take a great effort and we have to win the remaining four games."

The Cardinals, two-time NFC East champions, also view the contest as critical in light of a remaining schedule that includes NFC East-leading Dallas and AFC East-leading Baltimore.

"We can't afford to have a letdown," Cardinal Coach Don Coryell said, "the reason being, if we tied Washington with four losses apiece, we wouldn't have the wild card."

St. Louis has won three straight since the Washington loss, all by the margin of a Jim Bakken field goal. In one of the team's finest performances last Sunday, the Cardinals came from behind to nip Los Angeles 30-28 in the final seconds.

Washington's loss will make them a hungry competitor, Coryell predicted.

"I'm sure this will be an all-out effort on their part," he said. "There's no question they'll shoot everything possible to win. But I'm not concerned about knocking them out of the playoffs, I'm concerned about getting into the playoffs."

Jim Hart, who leads NFL quarterbacks with 2,218 yards passing, is expected to have wide receiver Mel Gray, the recipient of the controversial touchdown catch of 1975, back in his sights after missing two games with an injury, along with Ike Harris, the team's leading receiver with 41 catches.

Redskin quarterback Joe Thiesmann suffered a hip pointer in the loss to the Giants, but he is expected to be ready by Sunday. If he isn't, veteran Billy Kilmer is listed as healthy.

Tailback Mike Thomas enjoyed his second 100-yard game of the season last week for the Redskins and now has 759 yards, ranking him ninth in the NFL.

In Sunday's other games it's Los Angeles at San Francisco, Minnesota vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Oakland at Philadelphia, Dallas at Atlanta, Washington at St. Louis, Cincinnati at Kansas City, Houston at Pittsburgh, Cleveland at Tampa Bay, New England at the New York Jets, San Deigo at Buffalo, Chicago at Detroit, New Orleans at Seattle and the New York Giants at Denver. Monday night's game is Baltimore at Miami.

Both Minnesota and Oakland can win divisional titles Sunday. The Vikings of the NFC Central are 8-1-1 and poised to lock up their eighth crown in nine years. The Raiders, 9-1, are shoothing for their fifth straight title in the American Conference West.

With Dallas at 9-1 in the NFC East, Minnesota has its work cut out. The Raiders are being pursued for the AFC's winningest records by Baltimore in the East and Cincinnati in the Central, each at 8-2.

The Cowboys have spent most of the season shooting it out with St. Louis and Washington. They can retain their one game lead if the Cardinals, 8-2, shoot the Redskins, 6-4, out of the race. If the Skins pull off a mild upset St. Louis is a one-touchdown favorite and the Cowboys handle the Eagles, Dallas will be able to widen its edge to two games with three to play.

Chance of snow today at St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Coach Don Coryell, recalling the muddy conditions that marked the Cardinals' loss to Washington last month, said this week that "I just hope it won't rain" for Sunday's rematch in Busch Stadium.

It may do worse.

The weather bureau has forecast a 40 per cent chance of snow and temperatures in the upper 30s when the two National Football Conference rivals square off at 3 p.m. CST.

The Redskins, who defeated the Cardinals 20-10 during a rainy Monday night contest at RFK Stadium, must win Sunday to keep alive their hopes of an NFC playoff wild-card berth.

Why Religion Is Necessary

In creating, God gave more to man than to any other creature. Only man can think, love and look forward to eternal happiness. Common sense tells us that we must thank God for what He has done. Thanking Him is an Act of Religion.

Because God has done so much for us we can easily see our dependence on Him. We can also see that we have to acknowledge our dependence. By doing this through voluntary acts of religion we fulfill our nature and thus find true and lasting happiness.

A state or a country is a group of men who are united for a common purpose. That purpose is to protect the rights of man, to promote justice and to insure the happiness of its members. Just as we, as individuals, must acknowledge God's superiority - so we, united as a country, must also honor God.

The consequences of irreligion will be the same for the State as they are for the individual man. But the consequences of irreligion to man are injustice, disorder, ruin, disaster, and unhappiness. The same may be expected, therefore, for the State. History has proved this to be true: where religion has been neglected by the members of a State, social, political, and economic decay has always followed.

Chargers dump Lilbourn to win NPHS tournament

WARDELL — Third-seeded Delta C-7 racked up 54 points in the first half and then coasted to an easy 92-77 upset of top-seeded Lilbourn in the finals of the North Pemiscot Invitational Tournament Saturday night.

It was the first time in four years that Lilbourn had not won the tournament. The win marked the first championship for the Chargers in the tournament since they won in 1969.

Delta C-7, starting only one senior in their lineup, came out running and gunning in the first half. The Chargers, who placed four players in the double figures column in scoring, led 27-21 after the first period. C-7 continued to outscore the favored Panthers in the second period and led 54-41 at the half.

The Chargers scored 20 in the third period and stretched their lead to 19 going into the fourth period. Randy Benson substituted liberally in the fourth period as his team failed to crack the century mark.

Cookie Rose flipped in 21 points and Terry Mead added 20 for the Chargers, who also got 17 from Keith Ward and 14 from Ike Riley.

Delta C-7 had made it to the finals with an 82-75 win over New Madrid Friday night. After taking a three-point lead at the half, the Chargers opened up a 16-point margin in the third quarter to put the game away. Thomas Mead scored 20 for the winners, but close behind were Ward with 19 and Cookie Rose with 18. Chris Hunter topped New Madrid with 18 points.

Ted Landers scored 26 for Risco as they upset Hayti 60-49 in the consolation game. The Tigers used a 36-23 advantage in the second half to win the game from Hayti, which had been seeded second going into the tournament.

Hayti had defeated Southland 63-45 Friday night in the consolation semifinals to make into the game against Risco.

Jack Nicklaus and Ben Crenshaw both earned more than $250,000 on the 1976 PGA golf tour.

Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles has won 20 or more games in six of the past seven American League seasons.

Ed Kranepool's 10th 1976 home run enabled the Mets to tie the score in the eighth inning against Montreal. His bases loaded single in the ninth won the game, 5-4, on Sept. 28th.

SeMo fights for MIAA crown tie-literally

Southeast Missouri State put a wild and wooly finish to a 7-3-1 season when their 33-0 rout of Lincoln was shortened by an agreement between SEMO coach Jim Lohr and his Lincoln counterpart with 6:49 of the game left. By mutual agreement SEMO was declared the winner, Lincoln finished 0-11 and possible personal injuries were avoided. It was a sad ending for what started to be a beautiful day for football. Southeast, of course, was content with the win since it assured them of first place in the MIAA for the second straight year. Their 4-1-1 conference record tied them with Northeast Missouri State of Kirksville.

The contest was marked by minor skirmishes throughout, but, as the margin widened, the conflict became more violent. Finally, with just under seven minutes left, the confrontation between the two sides began to resemble a riot. Coaches, fearing for the safety of their players, met with the referees and decided to halt the game.

Lincoln had just suffered a 65-0 blanking a week before and it had obviously been a frustrating season for the visitors. Southeast showed the Jefferson City school that they intended to continue the rough going when back Roger Schmidt took a pass from quarterback Don Backfish in for a score from the six-yard line. Mike Wood's PAT gave SEMO a 7-0 first period lead.

Wood, who kicked a school record 17 field goals this season, booted a pair of three-pointers in the second frame. Then, just before half, Jack Gokin gave the Indians an insurmountable 20-0 intermission lead with a one-yard run.

Backfish, a graduate of Dexter high school, enjoyed a sterling afternoon. He was leading the MIAA conference in passing coming into the game and did little to harm that stature. Backfish hit on nine of 20 aerials for 117 yards and a pair of scoring tosses. It was also his five yard dash early in the fourth period that put SEMO up 26-0. Wood missed the kick and by now all the kicking wasn't necessarily being done toward the goal posts. Players kept flaring at each other and play was halted several times to separate warring opponents. Gary Kornfield, a tightend, scored the final SEMO points just before a bench-emptying confrontation forced the early ending of the game. Kornfield caught a 27-yard pass from Backfish and put the Indians ahead 33-0.

Lohr's two-year coaching record at Cape now stands at 14-7-1 with two straight conference titles. But, never has he seen a contest like the one that ended the 1976 season---six minutes and 49 seconds early.

Michigan & USC go to Rose Bowl

By The Associated Press

Michigan and Southern California both beat their arch rivals Saturday and earned trips to the 63rd Rose Bowl game New Year's Day. Michigan blanked Big-Ten foe Ohio State 22-0 and Southern Cal defeated Pacific-8 opponent UCLA 24-14.

Russell Davis scored two touchdowns on a pair of three-yard runs in the third period to give fourth-ranked Michigan its first trip to Pasadena in five years and its first victory over Ohio State since 1971.

Both teams finished with Big Ten records of 7-1, but Michigan gets the nod because it won the head-to-head confrontation. After the game, Ohio State accepted a bid to the Orange Bowl.

Powerful halfback Ricky Bell gained 167 yards on 36 carries as third-ranked Southern California dumped the No. 2 and previously unbeaten Bruins.

The Rose Bowl wasn't the only game to fill its holiday stocking Saturday, the first day the bowls are allowed to officially line up their teams.

—The Sugar Bowl announced No. 1-ranked Pitt has accepted an invitation to New Orleans New Year's Day. The Panthers will play Georgia, the Southeastern Conference champion. Both Pitt and Georgia were idle Saturday.

—The Cotton Bowl selected undefeated Maryland for its New Year's Day classic in Dallas after the Terps whipped Virginia 28-0 for their 11th victory of the season, the most in the school's history. Maryland, co-ranked with Georgia as No. 6, will meet the Southwest Conference champion, probably Houston.

Houston, eligible for the SWC crown for the first time, ambushed previously undefeated and fifth-ranked Texas Tech 27-19. The ninth-ranked Cougars can storm into the Cotton Bowl as the host team against Maryland by defeating Rice next Saturday.

The Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston was on hand to extend an invitation to losing Texas Tech to play in its New Year's Eve classic. The Red Raiders voted to go to the Bluebonnet Bowl if they don't make it to the Cotton Bowl. They could win the SWC title by beating Arkansas and Baylor, provided Rice beats Houston.

—Ohio State's opponent in Miami's Orange Bowl was still uncertain. The Big-8 champion is assured a bid, but who will it be?

Colorado and Oklahoma State, both 5-2 in the Big 8, are guaranteed a share of the Big-8 title after victories Saturday. No. 15 Colorado beat Kansas State 35-28 and No. 16 Oklahoma State downed No. 14 Iowa State 42-21. But only Colorado can go to Miami New Year's Day.

The Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston was on hand to extend an invitation to losing Texas Tech to play in its New Year's Eve classic. The Red Raiders voted to go to the Bluebonnet Bowl if they don't make it to the Cotton Bowl. They could win the SWC title by beating Arkansas and Baylor, provided Rice beats Houston.

—Ohio State's opponent in Miami's Orange Bowl was still uncertain. The Big-8 champion is assured a bid, but who will it be?

Colorado and Oklahoma State, both 5-2 in the Big 8, are guaranteed a share of the Big-8 title after victories Saturday. No. 15 Colorado beat Kansas State 35-28 and No. 16 Oklahoma State downed No. 14 Iowa State 42-21. But only Colorado can go to Miami New Year's Day.

Why Religion Is Necessary

In creating, God gave more to man than to any other creature. Only man can think, love and look forward to eternal happiness. Common sense tells us that we must thank God for what He has done. Thanking Him is an Act of Religion.

Because God has done so much for us we can easily see our dependence on Him. We can also see that we have to acknowledge our dependence. By doing this through voluntary acts of religion we fulfill our nature and thus find true and lasting happiness.

A state or a country is a group of men who are united for a common purpose. That purpose is to protect the rights of man, to promote justice and to insure the happiness of its members. Just as we, as individuals, must acknowledge God's superiority - so we, united as a country, must also honor God.

The consequences of irreligion will be the same for the State as they are for the individual man. But the consequences of irreligion to man are injustice, disorder, ruin, disaster, and unhappiness. The same may be expected, therefore, for the State. History has proved this to be true: where religion has been neglected by the members of a State, social, political, and economic decay has always followed.

Niemczyk's shot gives Cubs win at Bloomfield

A 25-point second period had allowed Bloomfield to move to a 37-28 lead at the half, but Niemczyk led Bell City's third-quarter comeback. The Wildcats were forced to go to a zone defense because of foul trouble, and Niemczyk, the Cubs' 6-0 junior sharpshooter, led Bell City's long shot barrage that enabled them to take a two-point lead going into the fourth quarter. Neither team could establish much of a lead in the final period, and Gary Sharp's tip-in with less than 20 seconds left tied the game for Bloomfield. Bell City took the ball and waited until the final second before Niemczyk fired in his 23rd and 24th points of the game to win it for coach Carl Ritter and the Cubs.

Colorado has Orange hopes after 35-28 win

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Colorado converted two Kansas State fumbles and a 67-yard drive into three second-half touchdowns to claim a 35-28 Big Eight victory Saturday and strengthen its hopes for an Orange Bowl appearance New Years's night.

The Buffaloes, completing their regular season with an 8-3 record and a guaranteed share of the conference championship for the first time in 15 years, need a victory by Oklahoma over Nebraska Friday to win the Orange Bowl bid.

However, if Nebraska defeats Oklahoma, the Cornhuskers will get the Orange Bowl bid under the bowl selection committee's formula by virtue of a 24-12 victory over the Buffs Oct 9.

Colorado will go to the Orange Bowl if Oklahoma defeats Nebraska since the Buffalos beat the Sooners 42-31 and also beat co-champion Oklahoma State 20-10.

The Buffs, who finished 5-2 in the conference, won the Big Eight title in 1961 with a 7-0 record but lost to Louisiana State 25-7 in the Orange Bowl that year.

Despite Kansas State's 0-7 last place conference finish and 1-10 overall record, this game was in doubt until the final minute.

Kansas State reduced the Colorado lead to one touchdown with 4½ minutes to go, then got the ball back again with 1½ minutes remaining on a punt. However, Colorado intercepted a pass at its 16 this time to preserve its victory.

Colorado recovered fumbles at the Kansas State 17 and 20 yard lines and turned them into second half touchdowns which meant the difference.

Jim Kelleher scored his third touchdown of the game and 15th of the season from the one after Tiloi Lototai recovered a bobble at the K-State 17 on th first play of the second half. That broke a 14-14 tie.

Reed's 36 carries was one short of Charlie Davis' record set against Houston in 1971, but his season total of 264 rushing attempts is now the Colorado record. He gained 1,210 yards this season, 176 short of Davis' 1971 standard which did not include bowl apperances.

Oklahoma St. clinches Big Eight league tie

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Quarterback Charlie Weatherbie ran for two touchdowns and passed for another and setback Terry Miller rambled for 199 yards and two touchdowns as Oklahoma State pounded Iowa State, 42-21, Saturday to insure the Cowboys a share of the Big Eight Conference title.

Both teams came into the game with 4-2 league records and hopes of getting their first piece ever of the Big Eight crown. But an aggressive Cowboy defense, which forced five Cyclone turnovers, Weatherbie's pinpoint passing and Miller's running proved too much for the Cyclones, who last week stunned Nebraska, 37-28.

Weatherbie, coming off the bench after freshman starter Harold Bailey was shaken up, figured in the Cowboys' first three touchdowns on runs of seven and five yards and an eight-yard pass to Sam Lisle as the Pokes took a 21-14 halftime lead.

It was 35-14 after three periods. The Cowboys got a gift midway of the third quarter as Robert Turner scored on a one-yard run after John Weimer recovered a Cyclone fumble at that spot.

Another fumble set O-State in business at the I-State 44. Weatherbie passed to wingback Ricky Taylor for 11 yards and then Miller dashed 33 yards for his first touchdown. Miller completed the rout with 1:08 left in the game as he ran 44 yards for a score on a fake punt.

The Cyclones, with quarterback Buddy Hardeman going all the way because of an injury to Wayne Stanley, put on a frantic fight, but they were shut off in the final period by interceptions by Milton Kirven and Gary Irions. Hardeman hit on 13 of 28 passing attempts for 184 yards.

The Cyclones struck first on Cal Cummins' three-yard plunge after an 83-yard drive in the first period and also got touchdowns on a one-yard run by Dexter Green, who had 154 yards rushing on the afternoon — including a 62-yard dash with a Hardeman fumble to set up a Cyclone touchdown.

But each Cyclone score was followed by touchdown runs by Weatherbie, who hit on his first five passes.

Trailing 35-14 in the fourth period, Hardeman directed the Cyclones 80 yards, hitting Al Dixon on a nine-yard scoring pass. But that was the last of the Cyclone scoring.

The Cyclones finished 8-3 on the year—their best regular season mark since 1938 when they went 7-1-1.

Varied Versions Of The Vested Suit: From Palm Beach.

WEEKENDER® WITH SELF-VEST OF 55% POLYESTER, 45% WOOL BY Palm Beach®

Big news in men's suits this season—vests. Nobody does the vested suit more tastefully—or in more variety—than famous Palm Beach* We illustrate two versions from our new collection: a check and a herringbone, both in a shape-retaining blend of polyester and wool. Both are fashionable center-vent models, with flap pockets and wide stitching along collars, lapels and pocket flaps. Both have a tweedy air that goes equally well on weekdays and weekends. Whichever you choose, you're assured of impeccable tailoring by Palm Beach, and perfect fitting by us. Choose yours today!

FIRES

The Department of Public Safety fire division answered two fire calls Saturday night.

The first was to put out a grass fire at 6:38 p.m. on Highway 60 West. Someone apparently threw a lighted cigarette along the roadside, causing minor fire damage.

The second call came at 7:11 p.m. to 332 Alabama St. Firemen said food on a stove had smoked up the house, but the fire was out by the time the fire truck arrived.

John Adams lived longer than any other President, according to World Book Encyclopedia. He died just 5 months before his 91st birthday on July 4, 1826, the same date that Thomas Jefferson died.

Audit finds no wrongs in city of Chaffee books

CHAFFEE--A state audit or Chaffee city government's financial practices listed several procedural reforms to tighten control over accounting of funds but found no criminal wrongdoing in the city's finances.

The state auditor's office performed the audit after receiving petitions from five per cent of the registered voters in the city. The petitions were sent after questions arose about the city's practices in handling money. Charges of misappropriation of funds were leveled against city officials.

Chaffee Mayor Robert H. Capshaw said he is pleased with the audit's outcome which vindicated city government. However, the mayor charged that some television and radio news reports have distorted the audit findings and the management advisory report attached to the audit.

The news reports, he claimed, insinuated that Chaffee City Collector Charles Cunningham acted illegally and took property of the city tax rolls. Cunningham did not do this, the mayor said.

In preparing the Chaffee tax rolls, the city collector received tax assessments from the Scott County clerk which included property outside the city limits. The city cannot legally collect taxes on this property and the collector acted rightly in removing the property from the city tax books, Mayor Capshaw said.

In a conference with the auditors before the audit was released, the city and state reached agreement on several recommendations to improve the city's accounting of funds received and spent.

"We just want everyone to know that we run a tight ship here," Capshaw said. 'Many of the things that the audtiors found were things they had to come up with. You can't go to all the trouble of having an audit fo this kind without having something to show for it."

Under the state law, the city of Chaffee must pay the audit's cost, and although they have not yet received the state's bill, Capshaw said it is expected to be "for several thousands dollars."

Among the recommendations the state made are:

—Restructuring the tax collecting system so that only properties located within the city are sent to city clerk's office for preparation. Once they tax books are prepared, they should be sent to the collector's office for billing.

—The city develop and implement an adequate system of internal controls over cash collections. Including daily collection reports, numerically controlled billing statements and stronger efforts to collect upaid parking tickets.

—Adopting a warrant system for city payments which would create greater controls over the cash flow.

—List of payments by the city be signed by the mayor and attached to the Board of Aldermen's official minutes for concerned citizens to inspect.

—Better accounting of expenditures through written procedures to ensure that goods and services paid for are received. Such procedures should include cancellation of invoices, billing statements upon payment and retention of documents supporting expenditures.

—Establishment of property control records, which the city presently does not have, to keep tabs on all city's fixed assests.

—Publication of semi-annual financial statments as required by law. The city now only publishes an annual statement which omits the city's bonded indebtedness.

—Improvement of city's bookkeeping system with consolidation of small existing funds into larger funds.

—The city should make periodic comparisons between the actual and budgeted expenditures. If the city decided to spend more than the original budget allows, the necessary resolutions can be passed to revise the budget. The auditors noted that the city exceeded the budget in eight funds for the fiscal year ending in March 1976. Comparisons would allow revisions be made in spendings.

Road district criticized

CHAFFEE--A state auditor's report on the Chaffee Special Road District released this week points out a number of shoddy practices resulting from failure to faithfully adhere to statutory requirements.

Criticism of the district on these counts falls short of accusing its members of malfeasance in office. The district has promised to take steps to correct the situtation.

A major failing, as outlined in the report, is excessive indebtedness. The district's cash balance on June 30 was $629 with outstanding warrants (debts) of $10,244.

According to the audtior's report, the district has practiced deficit spending for several years. State law says such districts shall not become indebted in any one year for more money than it receives as income.

On a minor note, the report states that the value of property and equipment owned by the district is not maintained at accumulated value as a fixed assest. It is suggested this be done.

Other points made by the audtior suggest changes in procedure in the conduct of business by members of the district's commission. For example:

—Monthly meetings have not been held. It is suggested that a fixed time and place for such meetings be established in order that citizens have a convenient forum for meeting with the commission. The district has established such.

—Minutes have not been kept. Such are necessary, the report states, to document proceedings and as a reference for past actions. The commission has agreed to make that change, too.

—Financial planning has not been done. It is recommended that the commissioners develop a written plan to eliminate its deficits and budgeting follow the plan.

The district's response to this suggestion was that it would reveiw operations for possible savings. It is estimated that the deficit could be cut by about $3'000 each year.

Commissioners also noted that during a period of the study conducted by auditors steps were already underway to remedy some problems contained in the report.

Audit of the district was done by State Audtior George Lehr's office. Fieldwork on the study was completed in mid-July.

Band contest is canceled

CHARLESTON — The 1976 SeM9 marching band contest has been canceled and will not be rescheduled, according to Wendell Smith, CHS band director.

The contest was originally scheduled here Oct. 30, with both parade and field shows planned.

However, bad weather forced postponement of the contest, and too many calendar conflicts among the participating schools have made rescheduling virtually impossible, Smith said.

The largest state, Alaska, covers 586,400 square miles—an area almost one-fifth that of continental United States.

Pickers await next season

Three-row corn pickers stand ready for the next season's crop. These pickers husk the corn in the field, but shelling is done at the DeKalb plant to prevent injury to the kernels.

Seed plant is under Bootheel sky

When someone talks about a production plant, many of us picture a factory with assembly lines, and huge dark rooms, where countless employes perform mundane tasks to turn out a product.

The DeKalb Production Plant, on U.S. 61, south of Sikeston, helps Nature produce seed corn, in the case of this plant, and most of the activity takes place under the open sky.

The local facility, one of 27 such plants nation-wide, was recently the object of a $2.5 million bond issue passed by Sikeston residents, and currently consists of a 30,000 square-foot building, storage and drying bins, and assorted equipment for processing the corn when it comes in from the field.

About 2,000 acres were contracted by the Sikeston Dekalb facility this year, with area farmers planting under the supervision of company representatives.

The corn is planted at a ratio of two rows of "male" plants to six rows of "female" plants. Since the finished corn is to be a hybrid, bearing the best traits of both parent plants, the female plants must be detasselled, so that cross polination will take place.

This detasseling process, makes Dekalb one of the largest summer employers of students in the area, since over 500 school age youngsters are needed every summer from June through July to form the detasselling crews.

According to George Pierrot, assistant plant manager, the work is hard and hot, but the pay is good, and it is an opportunity for students to earn several hundred dollars, and still have part of their summer off.

In addition to the summer crews needed, 35 to 40 workers are hired in the fall for harvesting the crop. There are nine full-time employes at the facility.

Once the detasselling is completed, after several trips through each field, and the crop is made, harvest crews pick the six female or hybrid rows from each group, leaving the two males rows standing for the planter.

The corn is husked in the field by the picker, and brought back to the plant where the ears are sorted, husked again, shelled and dried to a 10 per cent moisture content. Currently, the corn is being shipped to other plants for the last processing steps, but an expansion program at the Sikeston plant is to provide facilities for the complete process within the next two years.

The Sikeston plant is also a distribution point for DeKalb dealers in southern Illinois, southeast Missouri, western Kentucky, and western Tennessee. These dealers are usually farmers who, in addition to their farming activities, sell Dekalb seed. The Sikeston facility's warehouse is designed to hold about 80,000 bags of seed.

Expansion at the Sikeston plant is scheduled to include addition of buildings for additional grain sorting, drying and shelling, on the 16.5 acres tract. Additional warehouse space is also planned.

The parent company, DeKalb AgResearch, Inc. of Dekalb, Illinois, began in 1912, when a group of farmers in who were concerned about soil management and the quality of legume seeds, organized the Dekalb County Agricultural Association.

In 1924, DeKalb started experimenting with hybrid seed corn research, and in 1934, put the first hybrid seed corn from their research on the market.

According to Pierrot, hybrid seed corn will consistantly produce a yield 50 per cent greater than that of open pollinated seed corn. When asked about some statements that hybrid seed companies were going to price themselves out of business, Pierrot said that his company could actually charge more, without significant reduction in sales, because farmers are willing to pay the price of hybrid seed to get the tremendous return.

Pierrot said, however, that the cost of producing hybrid seed corn is high, and that Dekalb charges enough to cover that cost and make a reasonable profit. According to a company brochure, Dekalb net sales and other revenues for 1975 totaled $300,662,000, with net earnings of 23,966,000.

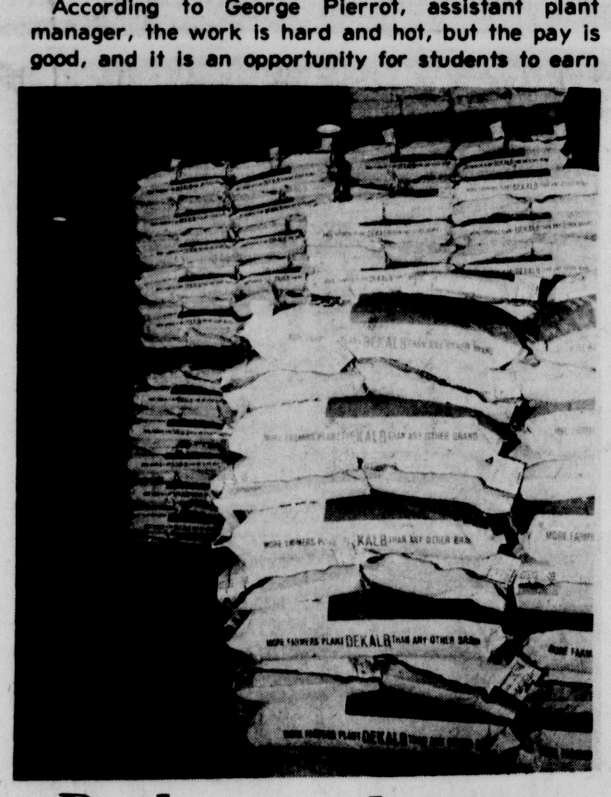
Although the Sikeston plant is limited to seed corn production, and the distribution to dealers of a few auxiliary products, Dekalb AgResearch has diversified in the production of farm related goods.

In addition to hybrid seed corn production, the company produces sorghum, wheat and alfalfa. In animal sciences, hybrid swine and poultry and feeds are produced. Dekalb's Heinhold Companies are livestock marketing centers.

The company has also gotten into oil drilling, manufacturing irrigation equipment and optical instruments.

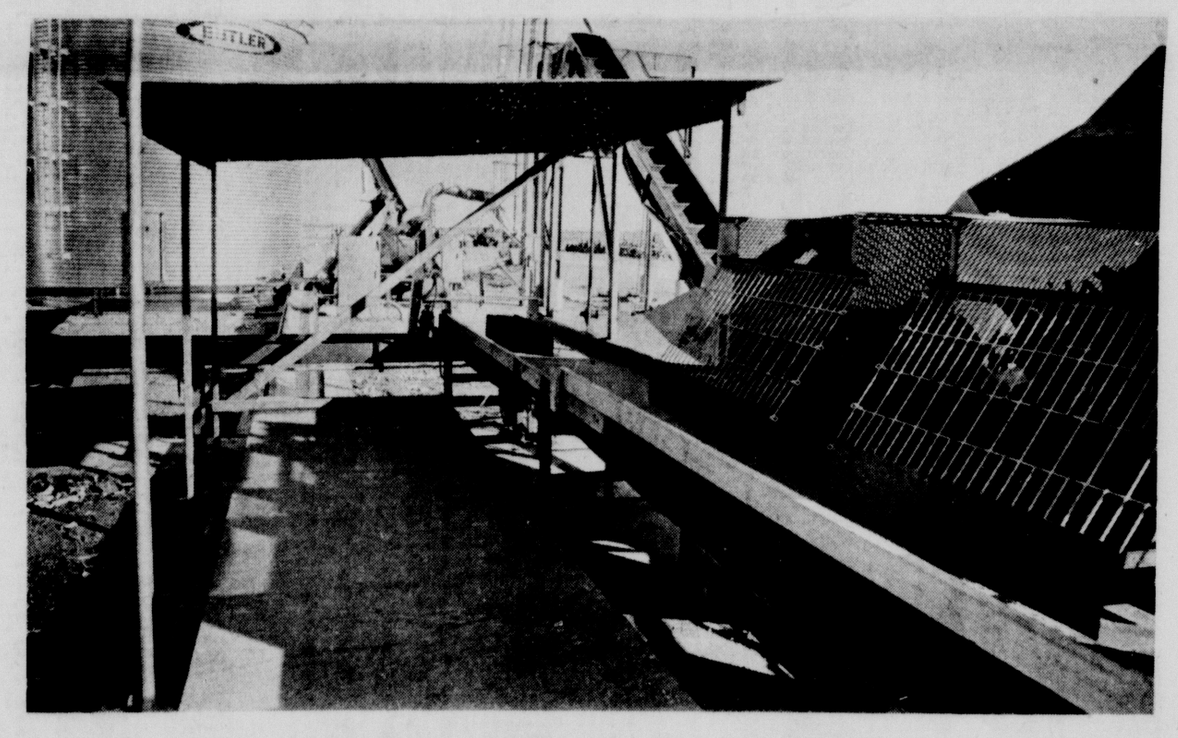
Hauling seed

The seed is hauled to other DeKalb plants for final processing, but the whole procedure will be done at the Sikeston plant, when additional facilities are built.



Dealer supply point

Hybrid seed corn is stored here for dealers and distributed to DeKalb retail salesmen in southeast Missouri, southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee. This storage area is designed to hold 80,000 bags of seed corn.



Sorting platform

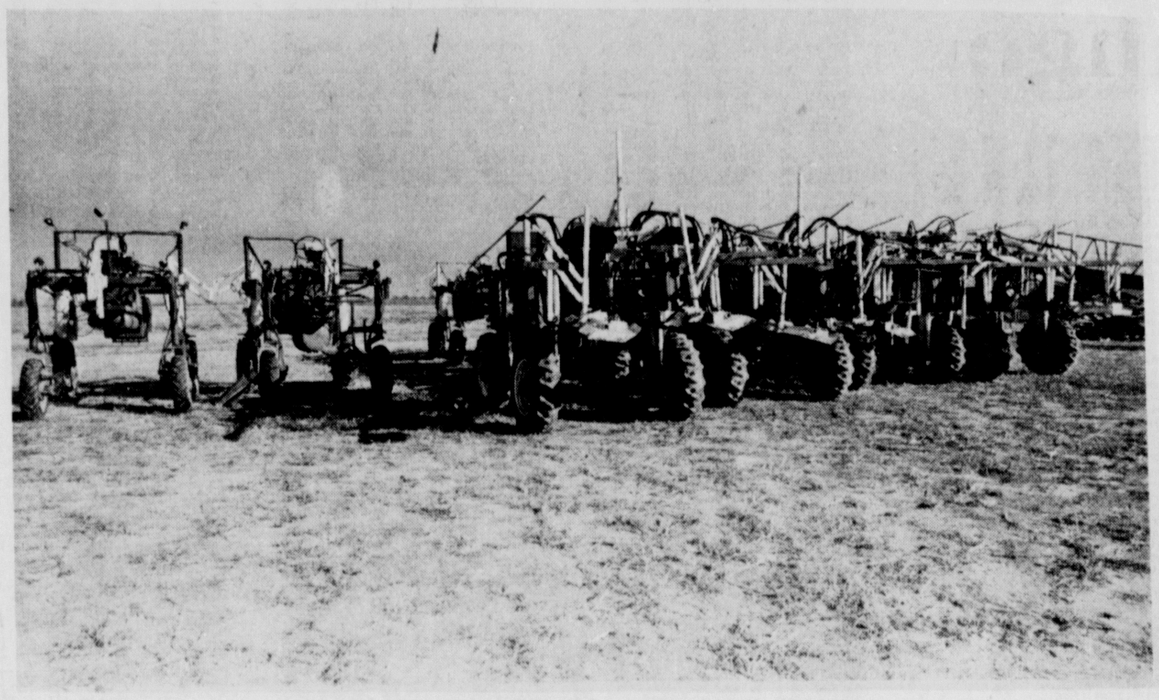
Sikeston DeKalb production plant

The new DeKalb plant's only building at this time is this 30,000 square foot combination office, maintenance area and warehouse. More buildings are planned for the near future.

Grain drying and storage

Twelve grain storage and drying bins await the corn after it is shelled. It is accepted after reaching the 40 per cent moisture level, and dried down 10 per cent.



Detasselling machines

Detasselling is done by hand and by these cutters. The tassels that are not of uniform height, must be cut off by hand, during the several trips that are made through each field.

The local facility, one of 27 such plants nation-wide, was recently the object of a $2.5 million bond issue passed by Sikeston residents, and currently consists of a 30,000 square-foot building, storage and drying bins, and assorted equipment for processing the corn when it comes in from the field.

About 2,000 acres were contracted by the Sikeston Dekalb facility this year, with area farmers planting under the supervision of company representatives.

The corn is planted at a ratio of two rows of "male" plants to six rows of "female" plants. Since the finished corn is to be a hybrid, bearing the best traits of both parent plants, the female plants must be detasselled, so that cross polination will take place.

This detasseling process, makes Dekalb one of the largest summer employers of students in the area, since over 500 school age youngsters are needed every summer from June through July to form the detasselling crews.

According to George Pierrot, assistant plant manager, the work is hard and hot, but the pay is good, and it is an opportunity for students to earn several hundred dollars, and still have part of their summer off.

In addition to the summer crews needed, 35 to 40 workers are hired in the fall for harvesting the crop. There are nine full-time employes at the facility.

Once the detasselling is completed, after several trips through each field, and the crop is made, harvest crews pick the six female or hybrid rows from each group, leaving the two males rows standing for the planter.

The corn is husked in the field by the picker, and brought back to the plant where the ears are sorted, husked again, shelled and dried to a 10 per cent moisture content. Currently, the corn is being shipped to other plants for the last processing steps, but an expansion program at the Sikeston plant is to provide facilities for the complete process within the next two years.

The Sikeston plant is also a distribution point for DeKalb dealers in southern Illinois, southeast Missouri, western Kentucky, and western Tennessee. These dealers are usually farmers who, in addition to their farming activities, sell Dekalb seed. The Sikeston facility's warehouse is designed to hold about 80,000 bags of seed.

Expansion at the Sikeston plant is scheduled to include addition of buildings for additional grain sorting, drying and shelling, on the 16.5 acres tract. Additional warehouse space is also planned.

The parent company, DeKalb AgResearch, Inc. of Dekalb, Illinois, began in 1912, when a group of farmers in who were concerned about soil management and the quality of legume seeds, organized the Dekalb County Agricultural Association.

In 1924, DeKalb started experimenting with hybrid seed corn research, and in 1934, put the first hybrid seed corn from their research on the market.

According to Pierrot, hybrid seed corn will consistantly produce a yield 50 per cent greater than that of open pollinated seed corn. When asked about some statements that hybrid seed companies were going to price themselves out of business, Pierrot said that his company could actually charge more, without significant reduction in sales, because farmers are willing to pay the price of hybrid seed to get the tremendous return.

Pierrot said, however, that the cost of producing hybrid seed corn is high, and that Dekalb charges enough to cover that cost and make a reasonable profit. According to a company brochure, Dekalb net sales and other revenues for 1975 totaled $300,662,000, with net earnings of 23,966,000.

Although the Sikeston plant is limited to seed corn production, and the distribution to dealers of a few auxiliary products, Dekalb AgResearch has diversified in the production of farm related goods.

In addition to hybrid seed corn production, the company produces sorghum, wheat and alfalfa. In animal sciences, hybrid swine and poultry and feeds are produced. Dekalb's Heinhold Companies are livestock marketing centers.

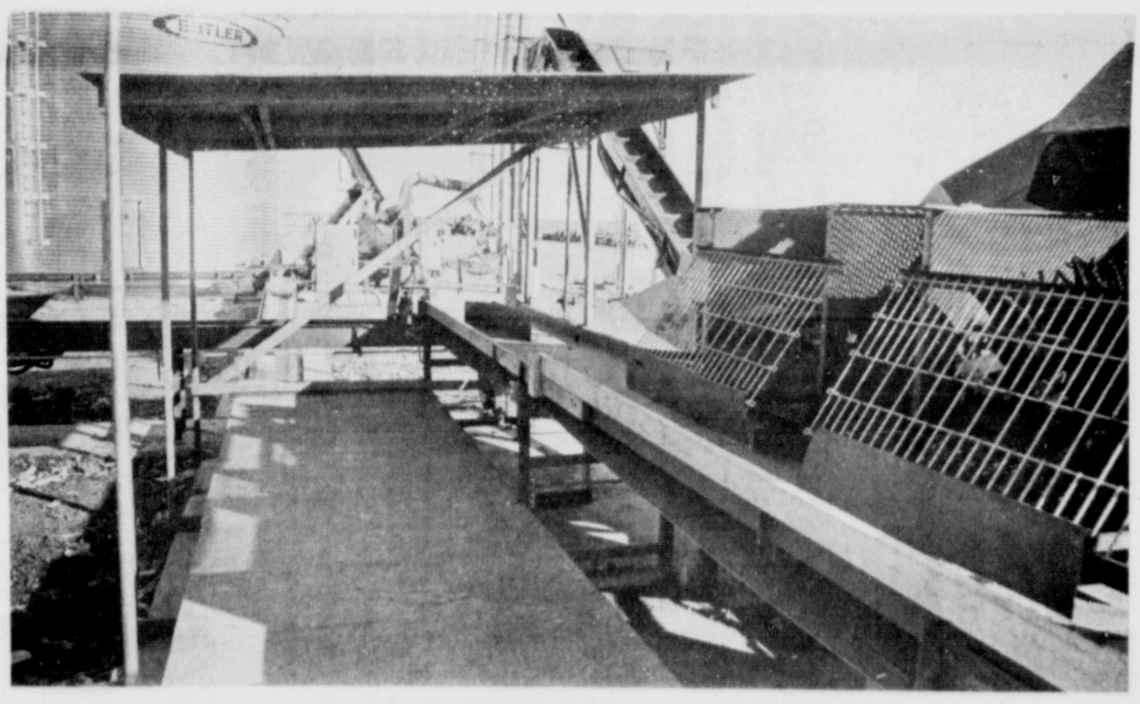
The company has also gotten into oil drilling, manufacturing irrigation equipment and optical instruments.

Hauling seed

The seed is hauled to other DeKalb plants for final processing, but the whole procedure will be done at the Sikeston plant, when additional facilities are built.

Dealer supply point

Hybrid seed corn is stored here for dealers and distributed to DeKalb retail salesmen in southeast Missouri, southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee. This storage area is designed to hold 80,000 bags of seed corn.



Sorting platform

Sikeston DeKalb production plant

The new DeKalb plant's only building at this time is this 30,000 square foot combination office, maintenance area and warehouse. More buildings are planned for the near future.

Grain drying and storage

Twelve grain storage and drying bins await the corn after it is shelled. It is accepted after reaching the 40 per cent moisture level, and dried down 10 per cent.

OSHA learns lesson on the 'outhouse' rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal safety agency that is drawing up an outhouse regulation has learned a lesson from the uproar over what irate farmers called "the privy in every prairie" rule, an official says.

The experience for the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) appears to have been as sobering as one of those fabled "trips out back" on a frosty morning.

"I'm sure that OSHA learned a lot" from the flap, said Maynard Dolloff, OSHA's special adviser for agricultural affairs.

The furor, which erupted last June, resulted in a congressional curb on OSHA's authority and an awareness within the agency of what is needed to restore its credibility, he said.

OSHA also drew flak for its farm safety booklets — said to be aimed at barely literate laborers — advising, among other things, that wet manure is slippery and that farmers should "speak softly to cows."

OSHA originally planned to require field toilets and drinking facilities within five minutes' reach of any farmworker. Farmers from around the county ridiculed the proposal as costly and impractical. They said nature's call could best be met in more informal ways or by driving to toilet accommodations.

The privy rule is still being considered, but Dolloff said it probably will apply only to such farms as fruit-growing operations and large truck farms, which frequently hire large numbers of migrant workers.

Assistant Labor Secretary Morton Corn soon will hold hearings in farm communities on the proposal.

Economist warns farmer, buyer of new farm policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's retiring senior economist warned today that farmers and consumers will suffer if the Jimmy Carter administration and Congress are not careful in designing new government programs for wheat, corn and other commodities next year.

Don Paarlberg, USDA's director of economics since he joined the Nixon administration almost eight years ago, said that vastly expanded world markets have helped farmers "dismount from the tiger" of government controls which had been in effect for 40 years.

"My critical question, as I see it, is whether we continue with a market-oriented policy or whether we revert to artificially high prices, burdensome surpluses and production controls," said Paarlberg, whose successor will be chosen by the new administration.

Paarlberg's remarks were in a speech prepared for the department's annual outlook conference, which ends today.

As others in the Nixon-Ford administrations have done, Paarlberg criticized proposals to set up large grain reserves, which some members of Congress have advocated. He said existing laws and options are available to insure ample stockpiles.

Although he did not mention Carter by name, it was plain from his text that Paarlberg was concerned about some of the pledges the President-elect had made, including those related to helping farmers through higher government price supports.

Paarlberg said that he thought that it was "unlikely that we would deliberately return to the policies from which we have now escaped."

State exports 1,826 head of swine

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri exported 1,826 head of breeding swine from January to July of this year, accounting for nearly 36 per cent of all swine exported from the United States during this period. The figures were announced by Walter Swenson, export marketing specialist, Missouri Department of Agriculture.

Almost twice as many Missouri swine were exported from January to July of 1976 as during the same period last year, when 932 head were exported. In contrast, total U.S. swine exports declined 52 per cent, down from 10,551 head exported from January to July 1975 to 5,107 head exported during the same period this year. A total of 2,024 head of swine was exported from Missouri in 1975.

"These rising foreign sales indicate aggressive export marketing from within the state, as well as foreign acceptance of Missouri's quality breeding swine," Swenson said.

Bootheel farmers plan for 1977

By JOE H. SCOTT
State agronomy specialist

PORTAGEVILLE— Bootheel cotton growers are hoping for a longer growing season as they make plans for 1977.

Cool weather early in the season delayed fruiting three weeks this year and a freeze Oct. 18 cut the season and the crop short. It cost most growers half a bale or more per acre, and some had fields that they didn't put a picker in due to the freeze.

No doubt the adverse season will cause a reduction in cotton in some parts of the Bootheel, as some will go to more grain crops. The southern two or three counties, where most of the area cotton is grown, are likely to have a normal acreage of cotton, as year in and year out, cotton has competed with other crops. This is also the case along the Sikeston ridge.

The success of the cotton crop in Missouri depends a great deal on the kind of start growers get in the spring. Bootheel growers can't afford to let the crop be retarded by diseases, insects or weeds. Not much can be done about the weather, but cotton has a better chance to get off to an early start if high quality seed is planted, in-the-furrow fungicides are used and early season insects like thrips are controlled.

Cotton was delayed in fruiting this past season and with the early frost we tried to make a crop in 120 days instead of the normal 150 days.

Some growers were able to make a crop in this short season on certain soil types with early maturing varieties and by using practices that enable their cotton to start growing as soon as weather warmed up in the spring, but this is most difficult to accomplish if you don't have your crop up and growing by the third week in May.

As you evaluate your cropping program in making plans for next year, the following list may include some points you may want to consider:

1. Make arrangements for best quality planting seed you can get. Select varieties that are suited to soil types on your farm and lean toward early maturing varieties.
2. If in doubt about germination of seed, have a test run prior to planting. A lot of low germinating seed was planted this past season and a lot of cotton acreage was lost for this reason.
3. Plan for seed and in-furrow fungicidal treatments to help insure getting and maintaining a stand.
4. Determine fertilizer and lime needs early. Be ready to apply at right time, especially nitrogen. More attention may be needed to potash needs. Some growers started lime program this fall.
5. Check on soil compaction. Root restriction can cut yields.
6. Make a weed map and plan a weed control system to control weeds in each field. Rates of herbicides should not exceed label recommendations. Careful attention should be to soil incorporation methods to keep herbicide at proper depth. Keep post applications off of cotton as much as possible.
7. Improve drainage system to get water off land rapidly as possible to enable planting time and cut down on water damage to growing crops.
8. Be prepared to or have cotton scouted as often as possible to keep ahead of insect, weed and disease problems.
9. Prepare seedbeds as early as weather permits to enable an early stand of cotton.
10. Adjust seeding rates to seed quality and soil type. Thick stands can delay maturity. Higher populations can be tolerated on gumbo or heavy clay soil than on loamy soils.
11. Other points to consider in avoiding late maturity is nitrogen rates and time of application and irrigation practices.

Cotton prices drop slightly during week

HAYTI — Cotton prices dropped slightly during the week ending Nov. 12, reports Paul W. Karban, officer in charge of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service Cotton Classing Office in Hayti. On Nov. 11, prices on the 1976 December futures dropped near $10 per bale. However, some of this loss was regained on the following morning.

Demand was moderate for Missouri ginnings. Supplies being offered for trading was very light. Spot cotton sales of small mixed lots consisting of grades 41 and higher generally sold for 77 to 79 cents per pound. A few selected lots were traded for 80 cents per pounds. Lower grade lots of mostly 51 and 42 brought from 75 to 77 cents per pounds. Lots with staple 33 were discounted an additional $7.50 to $10 per bale.

The classing office graded near 15,000 samples during the week, bringing the season's total to approximately 100,000 samples.

The quality of last week's classings was lower. Grade 41 accounted for 43 per cent of the receipts. Twenty- seven per cent was graded in the light spotted color group, of which grade 42 was predominant. The amount of full spots increased to 7 per cent. Staple 34 was predominant, accounting for 64 per cent. The remaining 36 per cent was almost equally divided between staples 33 and 35.

Of the cotton tested, 85 per cent miked in the 3.5- 4.9 range. Fourteen per cent miked under the 3.5 reading.

Based on crop conditions as of Nov. 1, the Crop Reporting Board estimates that Missouri will produce 155,000 bales of cotton this season. This is down 15,000 bales from the October estimate. The total U.S. cotton production was estimated at 9.9 million, down from last month's estimate of 10.3 million bales.

Pork producers urged to attend swine health management symposium

ST. LOUIS — Missouri pork producers are being urged to attend a swine health management symposium scheduled Dec. 1-2 at Stouffer's Riverfront Towers under the sponsorship of the National Pork Producers Council.

Leading swine health management specialists and producers from across the country are scheduled to discuss topics ranging from health economics to the current controversy on the use of feed additives and preventive drugs.

According to Jerry Clevenger of Boonville, executive secretary of the Missouri Pork Producers Association, pork production today requires condensing greater number of animals into smaller spaces. As a result, pork producers have become not only geneticists and engineers, but also nutritionists. Pork producers have been forced into developing one of the most intensified preventive medicine programs known to man.

"It is estimated that 90 per cent of the hogs produced each year have had the supportive benefit of antibiotic feed additive products during the early high stress periods of their life," Clevenger said. "With the possible elimination of some of these products, health management has taken on an even greater importance to all persons in the pork industry."

Camille Haney, consumer consultant from Milwaukee, will discuss the consumer's side of the use of feed additives. She is a member of the subcommittee on antibiotics in animal feeds of the National Advisory Food and Drug Committee.

Dr. John Coltrain of Thorntown, Ind., will discuss alternatives in herd health planning. Coltrain will give producers some indication of what to expect and what to do if some widely used feed additives and preventive drugs are removed from the market.

The registration fee for the two- day event is $35, which includes two meals and a copy of the proceedings of the meeting. Pre- registration is possible by sending $35 to the NPPC, Swine Health, 4715 Grand Ave., Des Moines, Iowa 50312. Hotel reservations can be made by writing Stouffer's Riverfront Towers, NPPC Symposium Reservations, 200 S. Fourth St, St. Louis, Mo. 63102.

SAN FRANCISCO(AP)- Hector Carillo, a night bus boy at a restaurant, picked up the dishes from a table, saw a folded bill under a plate and automatically put it in his pocket.

At home, he realized that what he had thought was $1 was actually $100. Carillo figured it was a mistake, came in early the following morning and left the money with the manager.

A few minutes later, an agitated couple from Mexico came in, asking if the restaurant had by any chance found a $100 bill on a table. It was the only money they had left beside their airline tickets home.

They were so overjoyed to recover the bill that they insisted the bus boy accept a $20 tip.

Bootheel 4-H leaders attend training meeting

PORTAGEVILLE — Thirty-five 4-H leaders representing clubs in the six counties in the Bootheel Area took part in an area 4- H leaders training conference on Nov. 9 at the University of Missouri Delta Research Center.

The morning program, "The Place of Projects and Activities in 4H", was presented by Nelson Trickey, assistant director of youth and 4H programs, University of Missouri Extension Service. Leaders were given an opportunity to develop specific 4H club activities through group discussion sessions.

Following a complimentary lunch, John Woodard, state community development specialist, discussed 4-H participate in a new program titled "Youth Involvement in Community Development". This program should provide 4-H members the means to better identify community problems and deal with them effectively through active participation in community decision making.

Leaders present from Scott County were Pat Moore, Lillian Westrich and Erma Grojean of New Hamburg. Also attending were Robert Taylor and Betty Ressel, Scott County extension youth staff members.

The conference was highly informative and will enable area 4-H leaders to develop an even more successful 4-H program in the Bootheel 4-H Clubs.

Johnsongrass choking your corn? Get Eradicane®
Selective Herbicide

Here's how to take control of tough johnsongrass seedlings and thoroughly suppress rhizomes. First, plow early and disc the ground several times to cut up the johnsongrass rhizomes 4 inches or less in length. Then incorporate Eradicane herbicide into the soil before planting. Plant johnsongrass infested fields last, in your corn planting schedule, for the best results.

That way the soil is warm, and your corn sprouts fast without weed competition and makes shade cover early. Eradicane also controls nutsedge, wild cane and many other weeds. Always follow label directions carefully.

Milk production expected to have sharp increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk production this year is expected to total about 119.8 billion pounds, up 3.7 per cent from 1975 for the sharpest year-to-year gain since 1953, an Agriculture Department dairy economist says.

But unlike some previous years of milk production increases, consumer demand for dairy products has also risen so that prices paid to farmers also have been up.

Charles N. Shaw of the department's Economic Research Service today warned, however, that, "market conditions have weakened and the potential for surplus" milk in 1977 is large.

Last year milk output was 115.5 billion pounds, about the level it held to in 1973 and 1974. During those times, milk prices failed to keep pace with spiraling feed costs and other expenses, forcing many dairy farmers to trim their herds severely.

With the huge 1975 grain crops and some easing of feed costs, dairy farmers stepped up production. Shaw said that the momentum will carry over at least into the early months of 1977.

His remarks were in a speech prepared for USDA's annual outlook conference.

"One of the more dramatic developments in 1976 was a substantial expansion in the demand for dairy products," Shaw said. "Despite the much higher retail prices, total dairy sales (including fluid milk, butter and cheese) this year could be up two per cent from last year and a record high."

Looking ahead, Shaw said that what happens after the first few months of 1977 will depend to a large degree on prices of feed, cull dairy cows and the general economy.

"The greatest uncertainty is whether or not the expected lower milk prices and the return to surplus conditions in the dairy industry will substantially slow the increases in milk output," he said.

"If dairymen continue heavy concentrate (grain) feeding and the declines in milk cow numbers stay very small, milk production would post strong gains throughout 1977."

All factors considered, Shaw said, 1977 milk production is likely to go up another 1 to 2 per cent next year.

Slate of nominees develops for Scott ASC elections

BENTON— The slate of nominees for the upcoming committee elections has been developed, according to Kenneth E. Vowels, executive director of the Scott County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office. Farmers across the county submitted the nominations by petition, and each of the eight townships has at least five candidates in the running.

The candidates are:

Commerce Township — Bill Beardslee, Marshall Bonifield, Garland Buck, Herman Hitt and Roy Proctor; Kelso Township — Norman Blattel, Ronnie Burger, Louis Eftink, Frank Lindsey and Vincent Miller; Moreland Township — Glenn Bollinger, Alex Burger, Cornelius Dirnberger, Zeno Felter and Paul J. Kiefer; Morley Township — Lloyd Boley, Lee Cook, James Emerson, Jimmy G. Johnson and Eugene Pobst.

Richland Township — Elbert Hubbard, Emil Schuchart Jr., Ervin Taylor, John Whitten and Johnny Wilson; Sandywoods Township — Roy Bollinger, Paul Dugger, Norman Evans, R. P. Householder, Vernon Shelton and Fletcher Withrow; Sylvania Township — John Eftink, Morris Hahn, Glen Pobst, Elmer Schaefer and Truman Senciboy; and Tywappity Township — Emmett Claycomb, Roy Lovett, Lee Pattengill, Harry Showmaker and John Stricker.

Ballots are being prepared now at the county ASCS office, and each eligible farmer will receive one shortly after Nov. 26. Three regular members and two alternates will be elected from each township. Their duties will include keeping farmers in their areas informed of programs available through ASCS and keeping the ASC County Committee advised of local farm problems.

Soil conditions ready for treatment

By THOMAS BROWN
Area agronomy specialist

BLOOMFIELD — Now is a good time for farmers to think about soil treatments for next year's crops.

Soil conditions are usually better for taking soil samples in the fall than they are in the spring, and this has been especially true during recent years. By the same token, fall is usually a better time to get over fields with spreading equipment than the spring, and crop harvest is rapidly freeing up fields for soil treatments.

Fall and winter applications of phosphate and potash fertilizers, as well as lime, have proven satisfactory in this area. Indications are that fall applications will do much to help avoid potential fertilizer supply problems next spring.

Perhaps the most important thing a farmer can do this fall pertaining to his soil fertility program is to make certain that each field on his farm is adequately limed. Lime not only supplies plant nutrients such as calcium and magnesium, but by correcting the soil acidity, it also helps other plant nutrients to produce the most effective results. For this reason, it is considered basic to the fertility program.

Lime can be applied any time spreader trucks can get over the field and crops will not interfere with its application.

As crops are harvested this fall, the needed phosphate and potash fertilizers can also be applied and plowed down or disked in with crop residues to await planting season next spring. Neither of these nutrients will leach from the soil excessively, so both will be available for next years crops.

The use of a soil test as a guide to the kind and amount of fertilizer and lime to apply is a very important practice and farmers are urged to use it to determine the fertility needs of each field.

A soil test helps to determine the amount of each nutrient needed to produce the desired crop yield. It helps to prevent the use of more fertilizer than is necessary. It also helps to determine the kind and amount of lime to apply to supply the needed calcium and magnesium and to maximize the effectiveness of other plant nutrients.

The use of the proper kind and amount of lime is essential to the production of profitable yields of any crop, and this is especially true of soybeans and other legume crops. Soybeans are produced on a large acreage of land in this area which is too high in soil acidity for the producion of profitable yields each year. It is therefore very important that lime needs be determined and corrected.

Taking soil samples and having them tested this fall will mean that you will have your fertilizer and lime recommendations when you need them.

It should be kept in mind that two to four weeks are required to test the soil and get the fertilizer and lime recommendations back to the farmer after he brings his soil samples to the University of Missouri Extension Center.

Each field should be tested every three to five years.

Taking care of fertility needs wherever it is practical to do so this fall can mean much toward getting crops planted on time next spring. This could be tremendously important if we should have another late spring season next year.

Cotton producers seek price hike, manufacturers are seeing profits fall below expectations

RALEIGH, N.C. — While American cotton producers are commanding record high prices for this year's crop, U.S. synthetic fiber manufacturers are seeing their profits fall below expectations-- and, in some cases, dip into the red. Many are having to sell their artificial fibers below the cost of production.

Not too many years ago the situation was reversed, comments Dan Troxler, associate director of demand economics for Cotton Inc., the fiber company of U.S. cotton producers.

The difference between then and now is consumer demand--demand which cotton producers can claim some credit for building, Troxler explains.

Troxler points out that U.S. cotton producers are now receiving the highest average prices of the 20th century for their fiber. At the same time, recent corporate earnings reports show the depressed state of the synthetic fiber industry.

Dupont, the giant of the industry, reported losses in its fiber division for the third quarter of 1976 and indicated that it is selling its synthetic fibers below cost.

Celanese informed its stockholders that polyester textile filament demand and prices remain in the doldrums because of the weakness of double- knits and industry overcapacity. The company reported lower than expected third quarter earnings, which is attributed partly to the low demand for its fibers.

One conglomerate, the El Paso Co., is trying to sell a fiber and fabric operation, Beaunit Corp., because of the depressed state of the synthetic fiber and textile industries.

Jordening anticipates that when the final prices for the 1975- 76 crop year are in, they will show that cotton producers were paid about 10 cents a pound more than the previous record prices of 1973. He expects that the average price received by producers for the 1975- 76 crop will be in the low 50- cent range.

Producer prices for the first two months of the new crop year are already running 15-20 cents a pound ahead of last year's level, Jordening adds.

"With demand high relative to supply, next year looks like another profitable year for cotton producers," he predicts.

Troxler points out that even though cotton is priced higher than synthetics, mills are finding that consumer demand for natural fibers requires continued purchasing of cotton. "This reinforces what we have been saying all along, that a good price for cotton doesn't mean it can't be sold. The important thing is to build strong consumer demand," he declares.

Jordening also points out that by maintaining strong demand for cotton-- and the strong prices it brings-- cotton producers can offset the rapidly increasing costs they face.

Cotton's share of the fiber market bottomed out at 29 per cent in 1973, Jordening notes, and it has risen to over 30 per cent this year, despite the prices. "I think this is evidence that the advertising and research efforts carried out by U.S. cotton producers are proving effective," he adds.

The strong demand for cotton, according to Troxler, is based on a combination of factors. Consumers are turning away from synthetics for a variety of reasons, he says. At the same time, they are expressing an increased awareness of the benefits of cotton.

"What has been depressing the synthetic fiber industry most has been polyester double-knit," says Troxler, who worked for a number of years at a synthetic company. "Double-knit came on strong with the consumers, and the synthetic fiber companies kept increasing their capacity.

"But the bubble burst. Polyester double- knits have proven to have serious defects.

Milk production expected to have sharp increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk production this year is expected to total about 119.8 billion pounds, up 3.7 per cent from 1975 for the sharpest year-to-year gain since 1953, an Agriculture Department dairy economist says.

But unlike some previous years of milk production increases, consumer demand for dairy products has also risen so that prices paid to farmers also have been up.

Charles N. Shaw of the department's Economic Research Service today warned, however, that, "market conditions have weakened and the potential for surplus" milk in 1977 is large.

Last year milk output was 115.5 billion pounds, about the level it held to in 1973 and 1974. During those times, milk prices failed to keep pace with spiraling feed costs and other expenses, forcing many dairy farmers to trim their herds severely.

With the huge 1975 grain crops and some easing of feed costs, dairy farmers stepped up production. Shaw said that the momentum will carry over at least into the early months of 1977.

His remarks were in a speech prepared for USDA's annual outlook conference.

"One of the more dramatic developments in 1976 was a substantial expansion in the demand for dairy products," Shaw said. "Despite the much higher retail prices, total dairy sales (including fluid milk, butter and cheese) this year could be up two per cent from last year and a record high."

Looking ahead, Shaw said that what happens after the first few months of 1977 will depend to a large degree on prices of feed, cull dairy cows and the general economy.

"The greatest uncertainty is whether or not the expected lower milk prices and the return to surplus conditions in the dairy industry will substantially slow the increases in milk output," he said.

"If dairymen continue heavy concentrate (grain) feeding and the declines in milk cow numbers stay very small, milk production would post strong gains throughout 1977."

All factors considered, Shaw said, 1977 milk production is likely to go up another 1 to 2 per cent next year.

THE WORLD OF THE UNITED STATES

Peace, we would say, is not quite at hand in Rhodesia. While a deadlock prevails in the Geneva negotiations on Rhodesia's future, guerrilla activities within the country increase. And Secretary of State Kissinger protests to the Soviet ambassador over Russia's continuing efforts to foment trouble and block any peaceful settlement. So the witch's brew still bubbles.

Nevertheless, we assume that one way or the other black rule is coming to Rhodesia. Prime Minister Smith and his government have agreed to it and it is now recognized by all parties as inevitable.

It is the process through which this takes place that is still crucial, not only from Rhodesia's standpoint but equally in areas beyond that country. Mr. Smith and his colleagues claim — and this has not been challenged — that they received certain assurances from Dr. Kissinger regarding the terms and conditions of the transition to black rule. It was a package of proposals which the Rhodesians were told had the advance approval of at least the responsible African leaders. In securing Smith's capitulation to these proposals, Kissinger told him that no further demands would be made upon him.

Now, of course, the blacks have totally rejected the Kissinger framework. This would have provided for a two year transition to a black government, the cessation of guerrilla war and sanctions against Rhodesia; and, most importantly, it would leave the ministries of defense and interior in white hands during the transition. Otherwise, there will almost surely be a breakdown of law and order as the rival black factions struggle among themselves for mastery of the new state.

So the vital question now is whether the U.S. will honor its commitment to Smith and stand by its own proposals.

If it does not, and simply brings new pressure on the whites to agree to anything the blacks demand, then two serious consequences are likely to occur.

First, Rhodesia itself will rapidly dissolve into chaos and civil war. Second, the usefulness of the U.S. as a mediator in other racial problems will be fatally compromised.

We refer here to South Africa especially. This is a ticking bomb which may soon burst upon the world with terrible force. Rightly or wrongly, South Africa cast its lot with U.S. policy in helping to bring joint pressure on the Rhodesian whites to accept Kissinger's formula. If we now betray our own assurances to the Rhodesians, South Africans are unlikely to put any trust in us when their own moment of truth arrives. With nuclear weapons at their disposal, the world might then discover to its horror what happens when the desperate Afrikaaners find themselves forced to the wall.

UNEXPECTED ANSWER

Who owns American business? That's a question worthy of debate because so many people have misconceptions about it.

Most people will answer, "the rich," "the elite," "two per cent of the population" or something similar. But those people are wrong. Their answers may have been true once, but not now.

The correct answer is that a majority of Americans have a piece of the action— and many of them don't even know it. The fact is, private employe pension funds now own more than one-third of business and industry, and it's predicted that they will control 50 per cent by 1985.

Every person who has a life insurance policy— and there are about 365 million of them— also has a stake in business because of his insurance company's corporate holdings.

Then there are Employe Stock Ownership Plans. These plans, which are becoming increasingly popular, encourage employes to buy stock in the company where they work.

Ask yourself again: Who owns American business? If you fit into any of the categories above, the answer is: You do.

Candidates and voters need to remember this in the election. Superficial distinctions between "pro-labor" and "probusiness' positions on issues have little meaning. Most of us who work see a capitalist when we look in the mirror.

XXX

SOAKING THE TAXPAYERS

After the smoke clears from both parties' national conventions to nominate their presidential candidates, there is one issue that taxpayers should make certain to be answered by the candidates so voters know who favors continuing to soak the taxpayers.

The majority of Democrats in Congress have voted for what is called "the redistribution of income"--largely by means of government social welfare programs.

Today, more than half of all federal government expenditures are on social welfare programs. From 1965 to 1973 the cost of social welfare programs nearly tripled, from $77 billion to $215 billion.

The question arises as to how far the productive resources of a nation can be stretched to meet the costs of open-ended social welfare programs.

But there definitely are limits that serve as warnings as pointed out by Dr. Carl Madden, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, who cites Britain's experience of the past two decades.

In Britain two decades of soak the rich has left little to soak. The government, in effect, takes 56 per cent of the Gross National Product, which is a measure of the nation's goods and services, and redistributes it by means of programs which provide social welfare from the cradle to the grave.

To pay for this, workers are stung by rising taxes as they press for higher salaries to offset this cost-- and inflation has risen from 2 per cent a year to 25 per cent today.

American taxpayers are rapidly being led down the same road, as advocates of big government in Washington push to expand the government's role in the economy.

Congress recently agreed on a spending target of $413.3 billion for the 1977 budget year, starting Oct. 1, which is $17.5 billion higher than asked by the Ford Administration and which creates a deficit of $50.8 billion. The deficit for the current year will be about $74 billion.

Meanwhile, the national debt will pass the $700-billion mark and cost upwards of $45 billion in interest charges alone.

The cost of the Congress-targeted budget per U.S. household is $5,533, the largest single item in the family budget.

How far can we go down this road? Certainly not as far as the British, we hope. But that is a decision the taxpayers will make in this election year.

HIGHWAY TRANSPORTATION MILESTONES

The following list of highway transportation milestones, compiled by the Highway Users Federation, just scratches the surface of important events in America's history of motor vehicles and roads. Its purpose is to remind those living in America in 1976 of the long history of road transportation:

1625-- First road pavement laid, Pemaquid, Maine.

1806 -- First federal - aid highway, built between 1806 and 1840 between Cumberland, Md., and Vandalia, Ill. It cost $6.8 million and was known as both the Great National Pike and the Cumberland Road.

1870 -- First sheet asphalt pavement laid, Newark, N.J.

1903 – Massachusetts enacted first driver licensing law.

1912--One millionth passenger car produced.

1935 -- First automatic parking meters installed, Oklahoma City, July 16.

1937 -- First permanent license plates, Connecticut.

1951 -- The one millionth traffic death was recorded in December.

1956 -- The 41,000-mile National System of Interstate and Defense Highways, to be built to accommodate 1975 traffic volumes and to be completed by 1972 at cost of $37 billion, authorized by Congress.

1970 -- Federal bridge inspection and replacement program established.

1974 -- The 2 millionth traffic death occurred.

Somehow, another important event in this list seems to have been overlooked-- the fact that national and state taxes on gasoline now amount to about half the price per gallon.

YOU ALL SPOKEN HERE

WASHINGTON — I'm grateful to Roy Wilder Jr. and David Moffett of the "Gourd Hollow Press" in Raleigh, N.C., who sent me two little books titled "You All Spoken Here," devoted to how country people speak in the South.

Nobody nows how many people from the Deep South Jimmy Carter will bring with him, but the dictionaries will be invaluable to help us know what they're talking about.

For example, if the Carters are throwing a dinner party at the White House and there is a discussion of the guest list, one of Mr. Carter's aides might say, "He's too poor to paint, and too proud to whitewash." They would be discussing, of course, a member of the Southern aristocracy.

If a Southern member of the staff says to you, "Don't get cross-legged," he is telling you not to get angry, or your wires crossed, or your signals mixed, or upset without knowing the situation.

There will be occasions when someone in the Carter entourage gets mad at a congressman or a senator. He may then tell the press, "He's three pickles shy of a barrel." This means he doesn'thave all his marble or "he's three bricks shy of a load" or that "his traces ain't hooked up right."

If the same person says the congressman or senator is "Passin' gas faster'n he can cap it," it means the person in question is a windbag.

A Cabinet officer may be in trouble with the President. If someone says he "pulled through" it means his sins have been forgiven and "he's ready for deep dip baptism."

Despite a Carter Administration there will always be sex scandals in Washington. A man caught in one will be known as a person who is "wild as a boar in a peach orchard," which means he is unrestrained in his sexual passion.

If the President has not seen one of his appointees for a long time he might ask him, "Did you winer well?" which is what someone in the Deep South asks a person in the spring that he hasn't laid eyes on since Christmas.

Since Mr. Carter has never been to Washington he is not acquainted with too many members of the establishment. He might be asked, for example, if he knew Clark Clifford. The President could reply, "We've howdied but we ain't shook," which would mean that the President knows the name, but he was never introduced.

Some presidential appointments may get more power than others. In this case, the person in question will be referred to in the Administration as a "big dog in the meat house."

If you are invited to the White House for dinner you can tell your friends: "Last night I ate the President's salt." The worst thing is to "eat another man's salt" and then knock him in public. If word gets out that you did, it could make the President angry and his press secretary might say, "The President is as mad as a rooster in an empty henhouse."

If you apologized publicly, that "would put spit on the apple" and end the argument.

Suppose the secretary of state is confused about a diplomatic problem. The White House aides might leak the fact that the secretary is "like a rubber-nosed woodpecker in a petrified forest."

When someone comes back from a trip overseas and brags about it he will be known as "journey proud."

If he lies to the President they will say of him, "His mouth ain't no prayer book."

If he failed to give the President the information he wanted, a White House aide might say, "He never said pea turkey" or "We got what the bear grabbed at," which means they got nothing out of the conversation.

How will you know if Mr. Carter is angry? If he ever says "That takes the rag off the bush," Brezhnev better watch out, because the lowest thing someone can do in the Deep South is steal someone's washrag that he left on a bush to dry.

Inside Labor

Duespaying Kojaks?

Big unioins wooing nation's cops and sheriffs -- especially in New South

ATLANTA, Ga. – What's new in Washington, D.C., South? Labor organizers, that's what's new. They've come with the political wind.

There are Operation Dixies centered all over this oft-tragic city which sealed one conflict election night and now appears to be the headquarters for new conflicts on a wide-rolling unionization front.

Action is flaring throughout the town like flames in "Gone With the Wind's" climactic scene. First textile and clothing union organizers. Then steel and auto union field men and women. And now the drive is on to unionize the police.

Of all unlikely national unions it's the Washington-based Communication Workers of America (CWA), whose president Glenn Watts has an eye on the big chair George Meany will eventually empty, which has the best inside line on organizing Atlanta's police bureau. It has more than 1,600 uniformed officers and civilian employes.

Actually, the campaign to swing Atlanta's Fulton County Police Benevolent Assn. into the new United Police Assn. Local 1, UPA-CWA is a more basic story than the post-bellum political and social euphoria here.

There are two stories, in fact. First, there is the resurgence of the old civil rights coalition of black leaders and labor chiefs. Rightfully, they claim they elected Jimmy Carter. Atlanta's 38-year-old, 6-foot-3, 285-pound Mayor Maynard Jackson is one of the nation's upsurging black leaders. He's in tight with -- and vice versa -- CWA official John Wreight. The latter, in turn, is chairman of the city's Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority and president of the Atlanta Labor Council (AFL-CIO).

So the connection was made. A former PBA official contacted the telephone operators' union chief. They devised the United Police Assn. Local 1, UPA-CWA. They unleashed a campaign for police signatures on union cards. In a few weeks they expect to have the big Southern police local in the fold. This will be the CWA's fifth or sixth Southern cops' local. The CWA's biggest police affiliate today is the Gainesville (Fla.) gendarmerie.

Apparently the telephone operators' local union, guided by their national CWA executive vice president George Miller, in charge of this "District 3" has more expertise and clout than first seemed likely. The CWA has allied itself with the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP), headquartered in Flint, Mich. No minor matter this. This is a major coup. FOP has 157,000 members, in some 930 locals, many in th South.

Since FOP is unaffiliated it could find a real haven in the folds of CWA. This in turn would automatically move it into the AFL-CIO.

With such a base, together they might sweep the South -- especially the smaller cities. It would be merely electric-lighting the obvious to point out the advantage of unionized police departments to labor organizers now beginning to move into Southern areas where past hospitality hasn't been exactly enthusiastic Local police can help -- or hinder; can protect or disperse a mass meeting; can permit parking of organizers' cars or tow them away; can overlook a snowstorm of leaflets or prevent it.

Locked into this development is the race for unionization of the nation's 600,000 police and other law enforcement officers such as sheriffs. Way out front is big Ed Kiernan's International Conference of Police Associations, the world's largest. President Kiernan, a man I've long trusted, reports the ICPA has 185,000 members -- including C.O.P.S., California Organization of Police and Sheriffs.

Kiernan's outfit represents the police of Atlanta North, known to some of us as Washington, D.C., and most cops in New Jersey and Ohio, the 18,000 member New York City PBA and other uniformed officers' associatons in St. Louis, Phoenix, Seattle and Las Vegas, just to list a few.

Kiernan stands well over six foot. He's worked the bricks in New York City. He headed the tough and turbulent PBA there. He never runs scared. Yet he is concerned over the International Brotherhood of Teamsters' renewed drive for control of police unions.

The IBT has been effective. They've organized or signed up some 200 locals of cops or sheriffs. In addition, the Teamsters negotiate for the 1,100 San Diego cops. The Teamsters are rolling fast across country. Secretly they're bidding for support from the often riotous massive New York City PBA.

So, this past Oct. 4, Kiernan's colleague, ICPA secretary-treasurer Robert D. Gordon, dispatched a letter to all member associations. Attached to the note was a copy of a slashing article attacking the teamsters' police unionization campaign. The blast was in a recent edition of a national magazine.

Gordon's letter urged all ICPA affiliates to reprint the scorching piece "and have all of your members read it."

So that's what's new in Washington, D.C., South – evidence of new union campaigns, especailly the drive to sign up as many of the country's 600,000 police and sheriffs as quickly as possible. In all, in FOP, ICPA and the Teamsters and some locals in Jerry Wurf's national municipal employes union, in the laborers and service workers, there already are some 375,000 police duespayers. This leaves some 225,000 police and sheriffs as the big prize in the open field. There's no doubt they'll go union sooner or later. Who will lead them and where are significant make-or-break questions. And that's the third story one can spot here.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter Must Defuse Panama Time Bomb

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- The Panama Canal is a time bomb set to explode next year. Unless Jimmy Carter can find a way to defuse it, the canal controversy could erupt into a crisis of international proportions.

— Intelligence reports warn that Panama's military dictator, Omar Torrijos, must produce a satisfactory settlement next year or risk being swept out of office by a left-wing rebellion. The issue is charged with emotion among Panamanians. The best estimate is that no government could survive that doesn't regain control of the canal within a reasonable period.

— There is another dark cloud on the horizon. A small check, drawn on a Panamanian government agency, has just bounced. The government had been juggling funds, it turned out, from one account to another. Bankers tell us this is a symptom of an approaching financial crisis. At the first sign of domestic trouble, dictators habitually try to divert public attention by seeking a whipping boy. Torrijos is expected to respond to any crisis at home by using the canal issue to whip up the passions of the people against the United States.

— Latin American leaders have alerted Carter's advisers that all of Latin America will unite behind Panama on the canal question. The Panama Canal has become a symbol, they said, of U.S. colonialism. An arbitrary, diehard stand by the United States, they warned, would fan anti-American sentiment throughout the hemisphere.

— At the same time, Ronald Reagan's campaign rhetoric on the Panama Canal has made it an emotional issue in this country. Many conservative congressmen are ready to wave the flag on Capitol Hill in behalf of continued U.S. occupation of the canal zone.

This could lead to an emotional showdown over the Panama Canal that could put a severe strain on U.S. ties with its Latin American neighbors.

Footnote: To add to Panama's woes, cracks have appeared in the gigantic Bayana hydroelectric dam, which Panama is building with $42 million in World Bank funds. Outside experts have been called in to find a remedy. The dam is one of the bank's proudest projects and is supposed to help lift Panama out of poverty. In a private letter, the bank's Latin American program chief, Roberto Fernandes, has conceded that "small cracks have appeared." But he insists they are not dangerous.

REPUBLICAN ENTRENCHMENT: As each new administration lays down the controls of government, it leaves behind several political appointees who burrow into the bureaucracy.

They quietly pull their heads below the purge level, wangle civil service ratings and continue to draw their govenment pay.

The deposed Richard Nixon had scarcely landed at San Clemente two years ago before his loyalists began a scramble for civil service positions. Several of his henchmen and hatchetmen succeeded in entrenching themselves in the federal government.

Now a number of Repubicans from the Ford administration are looking for safe berths in the bureaucracy before they are dispossessed by the Democrats next January.

The White House itself is helping to plant some of President Ford's campaign aides on the civil service rolls. A White House official explained that they had left the protection of civil service to work for the president's election.

"There's not many of them," he told us. "It's just a matter of someone here putting in a call to a personnel director at an agency on behalf of a guy in need."

Throughout the federal establishment, others are maneuvering to protect themselves from the Democratic broom. The day before the election, for example, Dr. Walter A. Guntharp, administrator of the Rural Development Service, submitted a reorganization plan.

Insiders say he was playing it safe in case of a Jimmy Carter triumph. The reorganization was carefully calculated, they say, to creat civil service positions for political refugees.

Guntharp is also trying to put an old military crony on the payroll as an "expert consultant." The would-be consultant drafted a memo, which Guntharp signed, justifying the job.

It's an old familiar game, which has been played in the past by Republicans and Democrats alike. But this time, the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee will be watching for any logrolling that might violate civil service regulations. Sen. Lee Metcalf, D.-Mont., is also keeping an independent watch.

Footnote: Guntharp insisted to us that his reorganization plan was not politically motivated but that it had been in the works for months. "This is as clean and as above board as any reorganization could be," he said.

THE WORLD OF THE UNITED STATES

Peace, we would say, is not quite at hand in Rhodesia. While a deadlock prevails in the Geneva negotiations on Rhodesia's future, guerrilla activities within the country increase. And Secretary of State Kissinger protests to the Soviet ambassador over Russia's continuing efforts to foment trouble and block any peaceful settlement. So the witch's brew still bubbles.

Nevertheless, we assume that one way or the other black rule is coming to Rhodesia. Prime Minister Smith and his government have agreed to it and it is now recognized by all parties as inevitable.

It is the process through which this takes place that is still crucial, not only from Rhodesia's standpoint but equally in areas beyond that country. Mr. Smith and his colleagues claim — and this has not been challenged — that they received certain assurances from Dr. Kissinger regarding the terms and conditions of the transition to black rule. It was a package of proposals which the Rhodesians were told had the advance approval of at least the responsible African leaders. In securing Smith's capitulation to these proposals, Kissinger told him that no further demands would be made upon him.

Now, of course, the blacks have totally rejected the Kissinger framework. This would have provided for a two year transition to a black government, the cessation of guerrilla war and sanctions against Rhodesia; and, most importantly, it would leave the ministries of defense and interior in white hands during the transition. Otherwise, there will almost surely be a breakdown of law and order as the rival black factions struggle among themselves for mastery of the new state.

So the vital question now is whether the U.S. will honor its commitment to Smith and stand by its own proposals.

If it does not, and simply brings new pressure on the whites to agree to anything the blacks demand, then two serious consequences are likely to occur.

First, Rhodesia itself will rapidly dissolve into chaos and civil war. Second, the usefulness of the U.S. as a mediator in other racial problems will be fatally compromised.

We refer here to South Africa especially. This is a ticking bomb which may soon burst upon the world with terrible force. Rightly or wrongly, South Africa cast its lot with U.S. policy in helping to bring joint pressure on the Rhodesian whites to accept Kissinger's formula. If we now betray our own assurances to the Rhodesians, South Africans are unlikely to put any trust in us when their own moment of truth arrives. With nuclear weapons at their disposal, the world might then discover to its horror what happens when the desperate Afrikaaners find themselves forced to the wall.

The old joke about women looking under beds at night in nervous fear probably originated with some man. UNEXPECTED ANSWER

Who owns American business? That's a question worthy of debate because so many people have misconceptions about it.

Most people will answer, "the rich," "the elite," "two per cent of the population" or something similar. But those people are wrong. Their answers may have been true once, but not now.

The correct answer is that a majority of Americans have a piece of the action— and many of them don't even know it. The fact is, private employe pension funds now own more than one-third of business and industry, and it's predicted that they will control 50 per cent by 1985.

Every person who has a life insurance policy— and there are about 365 million of them— also has a stake in business because of his insurance company's corporate holdings.

Then there are Employe Stock Ownership Plans. These plans, which are becoming increasingly popular, encourage employes to buy stock in the company where they work.

Ask yourself again: Who owns American business? If you fit into any of the categories above, the answer is: You do.

Candidates and voters need to remember this in the election. Superficial distinctions between "pro-labor" and "probusiness' positions on issues have little meaning. Most of us who work see a capitalist when we look in the mirror.

XXX

SOAKING THE TAXPAYERS

After the smoke clears from both parties' national conventions to nominate their presidential candidates, there is one issue that taxpayers should make certain to be answered by the candidates so voters know who favors continuing to soak the taxpayers.

The majority of Democrats in Congress have voted for what is called "the redistribution of income"--largely by means of government social welfare programs.

Today, more than half of all federal government expenditures are on social welfare programs. From 1965 to 1973 the cost of social welfare programs nearly tripled, from $77 billion to $215 billion.

The question arises as to how far the productive resources of a nation can be stretched to meet the costs of open-ended social welfare programs.

But there definitely are limits that serve as warnings as pointed out by Dr. Carl Madden, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, who cites Britain's experience of the past two decades.

In Britain two decades of soak the rich has left little to soak. The government, in effect, takes 56 per cent of the Gross National Product, which is a measure of the nation's goods and services, and redistributes it by means of programs which provide social welfare from the cradle to the grave.

To pay for this, workers are stung by rising taxes as they press for higher salaries to offset this cost-- and inflation has risen from 2 per cent a year to 25 per cent today.

American taxpayers are rapidly being led down the same road, as advocates of big government in Washington push to expand the government's role in the economy.

Congress recently agreed on a spending target of $413.3 billion for the 1977 budget year, starting Oct. 1, which is $17.5 billion higher than asked by the Ford Administration and which creates a deficit of $50.8 billion. The deficit for the current year will be about $74 billion.

Meanwhile, the national debt will pass the $700-billion mark and cost upwards of $45 billion in interest charges alone.

The cost of the Congress-targeted budget per U.S. household is $5,533, the largest single item in the family budget.

How far can we go down this road? Certainly not as far as the British, we hope. But that is a decision the taxpayers will make in this election year.

HIGHWAY TRANSPORTATION MILESTONES

The following list of highway transportation milestones, compiled by the Highway Users Federation, just scratches the surface of important events in America's history of motor vehicles and roads. Its purpose is to remind those living in America in 1976 of the long history of road transportation:

1625-- First road pavement laid, Pemaquid, Maine.

1806 -- First federal - aid highway, built between 1806 and 1840 between Cumberland, Md., and Vandalia, Ill. It cost $6.8 million and was known as both the Great National Pike and the Cumberland Road.

1870 -- First sheet asphalt pavement laid, Newark, N.J.

1903 – Massachusetts enacted first driver licensing law.

1912--One millionth passenger car produced.

1935 -- First automatic parking meters installed, Oklahoma City, July 16.

1937 -- First permanent license plates, Connecticut.

1951 -- The one millionth traffic death was recorded in December.

1956 -- The 41,000-mile National System of Interstate and Defense Highways, to be built to accommodate 1975 traffic volumes and to be completed by 1972 at cost of $37 billion, authorized by Congress.

1970 -- Federal bridge inspection and replacement program established.

1974 -- The 2 millionth traffic death occurred.

Somehow, another important event in this list seems to have been overlooked-- the fact that national and state taxes on gasoline now amount to about half the price per gallon.

AMERICAN VOTERS AGAINST COMPULSORY UNIONISM

Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act is the provision in federal law which gives states the authority to pass Right to Work laws guaranteeing workers the freedom to decide for themselves whether or not to support unions. Twenty states (Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, and Wyoming) presently have such laws.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Duespaying Kojaks?

Big unioins wooing nation's cops and sheriffs -- especially in New South

ATLANTA, Ga. – What's new in Washington, D.C., South? Labor organizers, that's what's new. They've come with the political wind.

There are Operation Dixies centered all over this oft-tragic city which sealed one conflict election night and now appears to be the headquarters for new conflicts on a wide-rolling unionization front.

Action is flaring throughout the town like flames in "Gone With the Wind's" climactic scene. First textile and clothing union organizers. Then steel and auto union field men and women. And now the drive is on to unionize the police.

Of all unlikely national unions it's the Washington-based Communication Workers of America (CWA), whose president Glenn Watts has an eye on the big chair George Meany will eventually empty, which has the best inside line on organizing Atlanta's police bureau. It has more than 1,600 uniformed officers and civilian employes.

Actually, the campaign to swing Atlanta's Fulton County Police Benevolent Assn. into the new United Police Assn. Local 1, UPA-CWA is a more basic story than the post-bellum political and social euphoria here.

There are two stories, in fact. First, there is the resurgence of the old civil rights coalition of black leaders and labor chiefs. Rightfully, they claim they elected Jimmy Carter. Atlanta's 38-year-old, 6-foot-3, 285-pound Mayor Maynard Jackson is one of the nation's upsurging black leaders. He's in tight with -- and vice versa -- CWA official John Wreight. The latter, in turn, is chairman of the city's Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority and president of the Atlanta Labor Council (AFL-CIO).

So the connection was made. A former PBA official contacted the telephone operators' union chief. They devised the United Police Assn. Local 1, UPA-CWA. They unleashed a campaign for police signatures on union cards. In a few weeks they expect to have the big Southern police local in the fold. This will be the CWA's fifth or sixth Southern cops' local. The CWA's biggest police affiliate today is the Gainesville (Fla.) gendarmerie.

Apparently the telephone operators' local union, guided by their national CWA executive vice president George Miller, in charge of this "District 3" has more expertise and clout than first seemed likely. The CWA has allied itself with the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP), headquartered in Flint, Mich. No minor matter this. This is a major coup. FOP has 157,000 members, in some 930 locals, many in th South.

Since FOP is unaffiliated it could find a real haven in the folds of CWA. This in turn would automatically move it into the AFL-CIO.

With such a base, together they might sweep the South -- especially the smaller cities. It would be merely electric-lighting the obvious to point out the advantage of unionized police departments to labor organizers now beginning to move into Southern areas where past hospitality hasn't been exactly enthusiastic. Local police can help -- or hinder; can protect or disperse a mass meeting; can permit parking of organizers' cars or tow them away; can overlook a snowstorm of leaflets or prevent it.

Locked into this development is the race for unionization of the nation's 600,000 police and other law enforcement officers such as sheriffs. Way out front is big Ed Kiernan's International Conference of Police Associations, the world's largest. President Kiernan, a man I've long trusted, reports the ICPA has 185,000 members -- including C.O.P.S., California Organization of Police and Sheriffs.

Kiernan's outfit represents the police of Atlanta North, known to some of us as Washington, D.C., and most cops in New Jersey and Ohio, the 18,000 member New York City PBA and other uniformed officers' associatons in St. Louis, Phoenix, Seattle and Las Vegas, just to list a few.

Kiernan stands well over six foot. He's worked the bricks in New York City. He headed the tough and turbulent PBA there. He never runs scared. Yet he is concerned over the International Brotherhood of Teamsters' renewed drive for control of police unions.

The IBT has been effective. They've organized or signed up some 200 locals of cops or sheriffs. In addition, the Teamsters negotiate for the 1,100 San Diego cops. The Teamsters are rolling fast across country. Secretly they're bidding for support from the often riotous massive New York City PBA.

So, this past Oct. 4, Kiernan's colleague, ICPA secretary-treasurer Robert D. Gordon, dispatched a letter to all member associations. Attached to the note was a copy of a slashing article attacking the teamsters' police unionization campaign. The blast was in a recent edition of a national magazine.

Gordon's letter urged all ICPA affiliates to reprint the scorching piece "and have all of your members read it."

So that's what's new in Washington, D.C., South – evidence of new union campaigns, especailly the drive to sign up as many of the country's 600,000 police and sheriffs as quickly as possible. In all, in FOP, ICPA and the Teamsters and some locals in Jerry Wurf's national municipal employes union, in the laborers and service workers, there already are some 375,000 police duespayers. This leaves some 225,000 police and sheriffs as the big prize in the open field. There's no doubt they'll go union sooner or later. Who will lead them and where are significant make-or-break questions. And that's the third story one can spot here.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter Must Defuse Panama Time Bomb

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- The Panama Canal is a time bomb set to explode next year. Unless Jimmy Carter can find a way to defuse it, the canal controversy could erupt into a crisis of international proportions.

— Intelligence reports warn that Panama's military dictator, Omar Torrijos, must produce a satisfactory settlement next year or risk being swept out of office by a left-wing rebellion. The issue is charged with emotion among Panamanians. The best estimate is that no government could survive that doesn't regain control of the canal within a reasonable period.

— There is another dark cloud on the horizon. A small check, drawn on a Panamanian government agency, has just bounced. The government had been juggling funds, it turned out, from one account to another. Bankers tell us this is a symptom of an approaching financial crisis. At the first sign of domestic trouble, dictators habitually try to divert public attention by seeking a whipping boy. Torrijos is expected to respond to any crisis at home by using the canal issue to whip up the passions of the people against the United States.

— Latin American leaders have alerted Carter's advisers that all of Latin America will unite behind Panama on the canal question. The Panama Canal has become a symbol, they said, of U.S. colonialism. An arbitrary, diehard stand by the United States, they warned, would fan anti-American sentiment throughout the hemisphere.

— At the same time, Ronald Reagan's campaign rhetoric on the Panama Canal has made it an emotional issue in this country. Many conservative congressmen are ready to wave the flag on Capitol Hill in behalf of continued U.S. occupation of the canal zone.

This could lead to an emotional showdown over the Panama Canal that could put a severe strain on U.S. ties with its Latin American neighbors.

Footnote: To add to Panama's woes, cracks have appeared in the gigantic Bayana hydroelectric dam, which Panama is building with $42 million in World Bank funds. Outside experts have been called in to find a remedy. The dam is one of the bank's proudest projects and is supposed to help lift Panama out of poverty. In a private letter, the bank's Latin American program chief, Roberto Fernandes, has conceded that "small cracks have appeared." But he insists they are not dangerous.

REPUBLICAN ENTRENCHMENT: As each new administration lays down the controls of government, it leaves behind several political appointees who burrow into the bureaucracy.

They quietly pull their heads below the purge level, wangle civil service ratings and continue to draw their govenment pay.

The deposed Richard Nixon had scarcely landed at San Clemente two years ago before his loyalists began a scramble for civil service positions. Several of his henchmen and hatchetmen succeeded in entrenching themselves in the federal government.

Now a number of Repubicans from the Ford administration are looking for safe berths in the bureaucracy before they are dispossessed by the Democrats next January.

The White House itself is helping to plant some of President Ford's campaign aides on the civil service rolls. A White House official explained that they had left the protection of civil service to work for the president's election.

"There's not many of them," he told us. "It's just a matter of someone here putting in a call to a personnel director at an agency on behalf of a guy in need."

Throughout the federal establishment, others are maneuvering to protect themselves from the Democratic broom. The day before the election, for example, Dr. Walter A. Guntharp, administrator of the Rural Development Service, submitted a reorganization plan.

Insiders say he was playing it safe in case of a Jimmy Carter triumph. The reorganization was carefully calculated, they say, to creat civil service positions for political refugees.

Guntharp is also trying to put an old military crony on the payroll as an "expert consultant." The would-be consultant drafted a memo, which Guntharp signed, justifying the job.

It's an old familiar game, which has been played in the past by Republicans and Democrats alike. But this time, the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee will be watching for any logrolling that might violate civil service regulations. Sen. Lee Metcalf, D.-Mont., is also keeping an independent watch.

Footnote: Guntharp insisted to us that his reorganization plan was not politically motivated but that it had been in the works for months. "This is as clean and as above board as any reorganization could be," he said.

Films presented to school

The first film reel of this year's Screen News Digest series, titled "The Business of America", was recently presented to the Sikeston school system. Bill Neel, left, manager of the Associated Natural Gas Co. office, looks on as Tony Statler, administrative assistant for the school district, receives the film from Jerry Halsell of Blytheville, Ark., director, of community relations for Associated Natural Gas.

Associated Natural Gas presents film to Sikeston Public Schols

History will come alive in the classroom again this year as Associated Natural Gas for the fifth year presents The Screen News Digest as a public service to local junior and senior high schools.

The 1976-77 release schedule of the award-winning film series will feature two timely and exclusive productions on "The Business of America" and "Energy: 2002."

"Associated is pleased to provide this unique instructional tool to our schools as means of helping today's informed youth become tomorrow's good citizen," said Jerry Halsell, director of community relations for Associated.

Halsell was in Sikeston recently to present the first of the film reels to the Sikeston Public Schools. The Sikeston schools make the film available to other schools in the area.

"The Screen News Digest," Halsell continued, "has been cited over the years by educators as a significant contribution to enriching their classroom curriculum."

The first issue of the current school year is a carefully-researched and specially-produced documentary ... in color... on the private enterprise system and its role in the growth of America.

The second double issue of the school year will explore an equally- important area in America's growth and future. "Energy: 2002" looks at ... and evaluates ... potential energy reserves and resources for the next quarter of a century.

Picture and narration provide a comprehensive and factual insight into research and development aimed at improving the yield of oil and gas from existing fields.. producing oil from oil shale and tar sands ... converting coal into synthetic gas and synthetic petroleum ... and burning municipal wastes for energy.

Also, the color documentary analyzes the potential impact on America's energy needs of nuclear fission and fusion ... solar heating and cooling of homes and buildings ... wind power ... and geothermal, tidal and other exotic energy sources.

Rounding out the 1976-77 school year, The Screen News Digest schedule of releases will include:

A topical examination of the long road to rapprochement between the United States and the People's Republic of China;

An inspiring film essay on the educational greatness and legacy of Tuskegee Institute, Booker T. Washington, and George Washington Carver;

A camera cavalcade, in sight and sound, of the people, places and events that made 1952 a fateful year in world history;

And an exclusive film biography of Charles Augustus Lindbergh on the 50th anniversary of his flight to Paris in 1927.

"We feel," said Halsell, "that these timely and timeless films will provide students with a window on the world as history comes alive in their classrooms."

Touch-a-matic phones available

Deloris Hurt, manager of the local Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. office, said the new Touch-a-matic 16 telephone has a memory that can be programmed to dial 15 local or long distance numbers automatically. She said that the new phone may be useful to residential customers as well as to small busiinesses.

Frequently called numbers or emergency numbers can be assigned to 15 of the phone's buttons. A number can be added or changed by dialing a new number and pushing a "record" button.

Emergency numbers can be color-coded so that even a child who cannot read can learn to push the right button to call for help.

To place a call, the user pushes one button and the phone dials itself.

Mrs. Hurt said the Touch-a-matic 16 is also useful when the customer reaches a busy signal. To call the number later, the user pushes a "re-dial" button. The phone's memory system recalls the last number dialed, then re-dials it.

Marshall Plan

The famed post-World War II Marshall Plan originated in a June 5, 1947 proposal by Secretary of State George C. Marshall to extend U.S. financial aid to all European countries "willing to assist in the task of recovery." During the next 3.5 years, Congress authorized the spending of some $12 billion on Marshall Plain aid, which was credited with restoring economic health to Western Europe.

Gold rises, Britian seeks loan Touch-a-matic phones available

By CROCKETT SCOTT

So read the headlines as common stocks continue downward.

A time to turn away from equities? Millions of shareholders seem to think so. And some stockbrokers agree, at least that it's a time to unload some of the losses for tax benefits.

Various Securities and Exchange Commission registered security analysts in St. Louis, however, stress the potential benefits of this mood indigo period to search for oversold issues and to look for common stocks selling below equity value or book.

They recommend investigation for possible purchase at a later date the common shares of Talcott National, a firm engaged in commercial financing and the factoring of accounts receivable.

Earnings have been very erratic, and there have been sizable deficits, but at times the stock has traded well below equity value. A couple of years ago equity value was above $12 per share. Your broker can obtain an update.

The stock trades presently around 5 on the big board, with the low this year about 3½ and the low last year a shade under 2.

This equity could make a sharp trader a sizable bundle if he moves in at the right time and unloads when the stock has climbed a couple of points or so. Such is the word from professionals dealing with St. Louis brokerage house.

At such a low unit price, they note, purchase of a few thousand shares at the right moment would not require a very big investment. "But you must pick it up near rock bottom," one noted.

Current situation and outlook are must information for anyone considering Talcott National, it is pointed out; and queries made amongst brokerage houses and banks in Talcott National's home surroundings should provide the hard truth.

There is lots of bad news about currently, counsel St. Louis stockbrokers. Consequently, this is an ideal time to make in-depth studies of the sluggards, as human emotions often prompt owners of potentially fine common stocks to dump them below true value.

State Street Boston Financial is another equity worthy of investigation currently, in the view of a number of SEC-registered equity analysts.

State Street Boston Financial has been around a long while and has paid a dividend since 1910. The stock trades over the counter, and a recent price (a few weeks ago) was 22½ bid, 23½ asked.

Book value as of Dec. 31, 1975, according to Standard & Poor's, was $49.62 per share. Your stockbroker can provide an update.

The St. Louis investment analysts suggest a few phone calls to Boston, with queries made to other banks there and to a number of Boston brokerage houses in an effort to obtain an objective appraisal. The home folks, it is believed, should know the facts.

People who make money in the stock market, insists a St. Louis customers' man, are no different than the smart horse trader or the farmer who makes money in commodities or livestock.

You simply have to buy under the potential market when taking a long position, he reminds, or sell short near the current top. And, to do this, you must seek out the facts, he emphasizes.

Society Corp., a multi-bank holding company in Cleveland, Ohio, is another financial institution whose equity possibly is worthy of study. Equity per share was valued at $51.83 as of Sept. 30, 1975 by Standard & Poor's and the stock traded around 29-30 a few weeks ago.

Price has ranged from about 17 to the current figure in recent years, although a few years back Society Corp. traded up into the low 40's. The stock trades over the counter, and has paid a dividend since 1963.

Budapest Hilton to open Jan. 1st

NEW YORK — The 323-room Budapest Hilton will open on Jan. 1, 1977 in the Hungarian capital city. The new hotel will be the first Hilton International property in Eastern Europe.

Individual reservations for the Budapest Hilton can be made through Hilton Reservation Service for any date after Jan. 1. Group bookings can be made through any Hilton International regional sales office.

Located on Buda Hill, a promontory overlooking the Danube River, the Budapest Hilton is adjacent to Coronation Church, the land mark cathedral where Hungarian kings were once crowned. The hotel is also situated directly behind the world-famous towers of Fisherman's Bastion.

The site of the Budapest Hilton is very historic. During excavation for the hotel, numerous significant archaeological finds dating back to the 12th century were discovered.

The hotel, itself, is somewhat of an architectural phenomenon, as its north wing is actually the remains of the Gothic cloister, nave and tower of the 13th century Dominican Monastery which long ago occupied the historic site above the Danube.

On the west side of the hotel site, the original baroque facade of the monastery has been restored and is the entrance to the hotel. On the floors above, many special duplex rooms have been designed to conform to the window locations of the baroque facade.

All guest rooms in the Budapest Hilton are beautifully appointed and feature air-conditioning and picturesque views of the Danube, the Dominican Church and the historic quarter.

The hotel's food and beverage facilities include the Kalocsa Dining Room, featuring traditional Hungarian and international cuisine; the Tower Restaurant, specializing in original ancient Hungarian recipes and of which the medieval monastery is a part; the Troubadour Dancing Bar, adjacent to the Tower Restaurant; the Espresso, an informal coffee house; a coffee shop; and several cocktail lounges.

Meeting and convention facilities at the Budapest Hilton include a ballroom with a capacity for 900 persons and several function rooms which can accommodate from 10 to 200 persons.

Energy crisis remains problem

CHICAGO — Congress must abandon its defiance of economic logic and acknowledge that private enterprise, rather than government regulation and benevolence, has given this nation the world's most successful economy, a Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) executive said at an Agricultural and Industrial Manufacurers Representatives Association convention here recently.

"If Congress continues, as it has with depressing regularity, to take the wrong turn at crucial crossroads of decision on energy matters, the future of the energy industry as well as the energy consumer is in jeopardy," said James M. Patterson, public and government affairs department operations manager.

"Despite a 68 per cent increase in Arab oil imports since the 1973 embargo, Congress continues to impede domestic oil development while the potential for severe economic consequences in this country increases daily.

"Adding to the negative impact of arbitrary, confusing and often counter-productive legislation, there are indications Congress will continue its preoccupation with dismembering the highly efficient integrated oil companies or to prevent them from engaging in more than one energy development activity," Patterson said.

The convening in January of the 95th Congress, Patterson suggested, offers legislators the opportunity to abandon the prevailing attitude "that the law of supply and demand no longer works."

"Our joint task is to redefine and renew the relationship of government and business, and to do so in ways that will strengthen the nation," Patterson urged. "We must begin by identifying where the public interest lies."

While recognizing the significant obligations of business to consumers, Patterson said government must withdraw from direct, detailed regulation of economic activity and concentrate on the role of policy development and coordination, and protection of the public interest.

"While maintaining its legitimate role as economic umpire, government must recognize that it cannot simultaneously be an active player," Patterson observed.

"It is vital that the nation return to making basic energy decisions in the marketplace rather than in the political arena," he said. "Only then can we proceed with the domestic development of oil and gas, coal and nuclear power and decrease our dependence on insecure foreign sources."

Patterson cited American agriculture as "working proof" that the right incentives — private land ownership, reasonable promise of profit in the marketplace and reduced government interference — can drive away the specter of shortages.

"The farmer, whom we both serve, consumes about 15 per cent of the total energy in this country," he said. "With it, he creates about $250 billion worth of food and fiber each year.

"The largest and most important U.S. industry, farming also has the most productive workers in the world. Each farm worker provides enough food and fiber for 56 people — about a dozen of them living overseas.

"Like American agriculture, th U.S. oil and gas industry is highly competitive and flexible. It too has the expertise and know-how to meet rising demand — if allowed to do so."

Corn to Stay Low, Soybeans May Rally

Corn prices are likely to run five to 10 per cent lower into 1977 compared to prices during last fall and winter, says Richard Rudel, extension economist at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

In addition, recent price declines in soybean prices are likely to reverse and "price rallies can be expected in the next three to four months," Rudel says.

Despite lower exports of corn to the Soviet Union because of the good crop there, the drouth in Western Europe should cause an increase in exports to there and "insure a strong export market" into 1977, Rudel said.

Forecasts of domestic corn sales are less certain, he said.

"Weakening livestock prices, recent increased slaughtering rates and substitution of wheat into feeding rations are causing uncertainty about the total quantity of corn that will be used in feed in 1976-77."

Because supplies of soybeans are projected to be lower through the end of the year, the forecast nine per cent reduction in domestic soybean use and six per cent in foreign [illegible] be right about on target, Rudel says. Therefore soybean prices are likely to bottom out and start increasing into 1977.

Gold rises, Britian seeks loan Touch-a-matic phones available

By CROCKETT SCOTT

So read the headlines as common stocks continue downward.

A time to turn away from equities? Millions of shareholders seem to think so. And some stockbrokers agree, at least that it's a time to unload some of the losses for tax benefits.

Various Securities and Exchange Commission registered security analysts in St. Louis, however, stress the potential benefits of this mood indigo period to search for oversold issues and to look for common stocks selling below equity value or book.

They recommend investigation for possible purchase at a later date the common shares of Talcott National, a firm engaged in commercial financing and the factoring of accounts receivable.

Earnings have been very erratic, and there have been sizable deficits, but at times the stock has traded well below equity value. A couple of years ago equity value was above $12 per share. Your broker can obtain an update.

The stock trades presently around 5 on the big board, with the low this year about 3½ and the low last year a shade under 2.

This equity could make a sharp trader a sizable bundle if he moves in at the right time and unloads when the stock has climbed a couple of points or so. Such is the word from professionals dealing with St. Louis brokerage house.

At such a low unit price, they note, purchase of a few thousand shares at the right moment would not require a very big investment. "But you must pick it up near rock bottom," one noted.

Current situation and outlook are must information for anyone considering Talcott National, it is pointed out; and queries made amongst brokerage houses and banks in Talcott National's home surroundings should provide the hard truth.

There is lots of bad news about currently, counsel St. Louis stockbrokers. Consequently, this is an ideal time to make in-depth studies of the sluggards, as human emotions often prompt owners of potentially fine common stocks to dump them below true value.

State Street Boston Financial is another equity worthy of investigation currently, in the view of a number of SEC-registered equity analysts.

State Street Boston Financial has been around a long while and has paid a dividend since 1910. The stock trades over the counter, and a recent price (a few weeks ago) was 22½ bid, 23½ asked.

Book value as of Dec. 31, 1975, according to Standard & Poor's, was $49.62 per share. Your stockbroker can provide an update.

The St. Louis investment analysts suggest a few phone calls to Boston, with queries made to other banks there and to a number of Boston brokerage houses in an effort to obtain an objective appraisal. The home folks, it is believed, should know the facts.

People who make money in the stock market, insists a St. Louis customers' man, are no different than the smart horse trader or the farmer who makes money in commodities or livestock.

You simply have to buy under the potential market when taking a long position, he reminds, or sell short near the current top. And, to do this, you must seek out the facts, he emphasizes.

Society Corp., a multi-bank holding company in Cleveland, Ohio, is another financial institution whose equity possibly is worthy of study. Equity per share was valued at $51.83 as of Sept. 30, 1975 by Standard & Poor's and the stock traded around 29-30 a few weeks ago.

Price has ranged from about 17 to the current figure in recent years, although a few years back Society Corp. traded up into the low 40's. The stock trades over the counter, and has paid a dividend since 1963.

Budapest Hilton to open Jan. 1st

NEW YORK — The 323-room Budapest Hilton will open on Jan. 1, 1977 in the Hungarian capital city. The new hotel will be the first Hilton International property in Eastern Europe.

Individual reservations for the Budapest Hilton can be made through Hilton Reservation Service for any date after Jan. 1. Group bookings can be made through any Hilton International regional sales office.

Located on Buda Hill, a promontory overlooking the Danube River, the Budapest Hilton is adjacent to Coronation Church, the land mark cathedral where Hungarian kings were once crowned. The hotel is also situated directly behind the world-famous towers of Fisherman's Bastion.

The site of the Budapest Hilton is very historic. During excavation for the hotel, numerous significant archaeological finds dating back to the 12th century were discovered.

The hotel, itself, is somewhat of an architectural phenomenon, as its north wing is actually the remains of the Gothic cloister, nave and tower of the 13th century Dominican Monastery which long ago occupied the historic site above the Danube.

On the west side of the hotel site, the original baroque facade of the monastery has been restored and is the entrance to the hotel. On the floors above, many special duplex rooms have been designed to conform to the window locations of the baroque facade.

All guest rooms in the Budapest Hilton are beautifully appointed and feature air-conditioning and picturesque views of the Danube, the Dominican Church and the historic quarter.

The hotel's food and beverage facilities include the Kalocsa Dining Room, featuring traditional Hungarian and international cuisine; the Tower Restaurant, specializing in original ancient Hungarian recipes and of which the medieval monastery is a part; the Troubadour Dancing Bar, adjacent to the Tower Restaurant; the Espresso, an informal coffee house; a coffee shop; and several cocktail lounges.

Ann Landers

'Unadorned' men don't excite her

Dear Ann Landers: So some men need black nylon stockings and garter belts to excite them. And you say, "It's perfectly OK with me if it's OK with them."

The inference is that the unadorned female is not very exciting. May I be so bold as to suggest that the unadorned male is equally unexciting? The consensus seems to be that the male needs nothing but the sight of his bare self to send a woman into orbit.

Well, I have news for you, Toots. Our culture has not conditioned the minds of females to accept male nudity as irresistible. Furthermore, males are even more handicapped than women because the fashion designers and trashy magazines have yet to come up with tantalizing undergarments for men that might help defrost icy ladies.

I don't think men are sick for wanting added ornamentation to excite them. I think SOCIETY is sick, and I'm no man-hater -- Just Sad

Dear Sad: Nobody speaks for everyone. But you have spoken for yourself and I thank you.

What turns people on is so varied, complex and highly individualistic that there will never be any guidelines. And -- why should there be?

Dear Ann: Our son is engaged to marry a beautiful and lovely girl. He is a medical student and the last one at home.

We realize the bride's parents put on the wedding but we have certain responsibilities also. The wedding is only a few weeks off and we have yet to be consulted on ANYTHING. All we know is the date, but so far no word if it's to be an afternoon or evening affair or what the color scheme might be. The place for the rehearsal dinner has been chosen.

I was told by my future daughter-in-law to prepare the list of people we wish to invite and the engraved invitations will be mailed to me so I can address and stamp the envelopes and send them out. Her parents live only 90 miles away. I offered to drive up there, discuss the wedding plans and pick up the invitations but she said, "That won't be necessary."

We are embarrassed when our friends question us about the wedding. We know so little. Do these people sound peculiar or are we crazy? -- Arm's Length

Dear Arm: The behavior of your son's future in-laws is certainly strange but perhaps ignorance is at the root of the problem. Obviously they don't know the rehearsal dinner is YOUR responsibility.

Instead of seething over their silence, telephone the girl's mother and ask the questions you need answers to -- such as, "What is the color scheme?" (You need to buy a dress.) "What time will the wedding be?" (You must know if your dress should be long or short.)

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a peppy, pretty (not beautiful) 15-year-old girl who is wiggy over a 16-year-old dude. He's really neat, Annie. My friends say he digs me but I get no sign from him. Not a clue. Shall I come right out and ask him why he's playing it so cool? -- Gotta Know

Dear G.K.: The rewards of waiting can be great. (Good discipline, too.)

Learn to idle your motor instead of stripping your gears, honey.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Ann Landers

'Unadorned' men don't excite her

Dear Ann Landers: So some men need black nylon stockings and garter belts to excite them. And you say, "It's perfectly OK with me if it's OK with them."

The inference is that the unadorned female is not very exciting. May I be so bold as to suggest that the unadorned male is equally unexciting? The consensus seems to be that the male needs nothing but the sight of his bare self to send a woman into orbit.

Well, I have news for you, Toots. Our culture has not conditioned the minds of females to accept male nudity as irresistible. Furthermore, males are even more handicapped than women because the fashion designers and trashy magazines have yet to come up with tantalizing undergarments for men that might help defrost icy ladies.

I don't think men are sick for wanting added ornamentation to excite them. I think SOCIETY is sick, and I'm no man-hater -- Just Sad

Dear Sad: Nobody speaks for everyone. But you have spoken for yourself and I thank you.

What turns people on is so varied, complex and highly individualistic that there will never be any guidelines. And -- why should there be?

Dear Ann: Our son is engaged to marry a beautiful and lovely girl. He is a medical student and the last one at home.

We realize the bride's parents put on the wedding but we have certain responsibilities also. The wedding is only a few weeks off and we have yet to be consulted on ANYTHING. All we know is the date, but so far no word if it's to be an afternoon or evening affair or what the color scheme might be. The place for the rehearsal dinner has been chosen.

I was told by my future daughter-in-law to prepare the list of people we wish to invite and the engraved invitations will be mailed to me so I can address and stamp the envelopes and send them out. Her parents live only 90 miles away. I offered to drive up there, discuss the wedding plans and pick up the invitations but she said, "That won't be necessary."

We are embarrassed when our friends question us about the wedding. We know so little. Do these people sound peculiar or are we crazy? -- Arm's Length

Dear Arm: The behavior of your son's future in-laws is certainly strange but perhaps ignorance is at the root of the problem. Obviously they don't know the rehearsal dinner is YOUR responsibility.

Instead of seething over their silence, telephone the girl's mother and ask the questions you need answers to -- such as, "What is the color scheme?" (You need to buy a dress.) "What time will the wedding be?" (You must know if your dress should be long or short.)

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a peppy, pretty (not beautiful) 15-year-old girl who is wiggy over a 16-year-old dude. He's really neat, Annie. My friends say he digs me but I get no sign from him. Not a clue. Shall I come right out and ask him why he's playing it so cool? -- Gotta Know

Dear G.K.: The rewards of waiting can be great. (Good discipline, too.)

Learn to idle your motor instead of stripping your gears, honey.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Wiethop

Matthews-Wiethop

Rita Kay Matthews, 430 Foust Drive and Daniel Tuthill Wiethop of Cape Girardeau were united in marriage Oct. 29 at the home of the bride's parents, 430 Foust Drive. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. John C. Matthews. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Wiethop of Cape Girardeau.

The Rev. Arthur C. Fulbright officiated at the ceremony.

Her bouquet was of roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Margo Mueller of Memphis, Tenn., was matron of honor. Best man was Paul Walker of Cape Giardeau.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the wedding. Servers were Mrs. Clay Matthews of Sikeston, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Gilbert Renner of Cape Girardeau, the groom's sister, Mrs. Philip Black of Sikeston and Ralph Mueller of Memphis, Tenn.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included the groom's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Renner of Cape Girardeau, Mr. and Mrs. Chuck McMuritry of Pargould, Ark., Mrs. Carolyn Carroll of Jonesboro, Ark. and David Wiethop of Cape Girardeau.

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Sikeston High School and attended Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau.

The groom is a graduate of Central High School at Cape Girardeau and attended SeMo State. He is associated with his father at Wiethop Truck and Trailer Sales at Cape Girardeau.

Shelby-Graves

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Travis Shelby Jr. and the late Travis Shelby Jr. of East Prairie and Mr. and Mrs. John Armistead Graves Sr. of Lake Cormorant, Miss.

A program of pre-nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Weldon Bird of East Prairie, organist, who also accompanied Mrs. Edwin McWilliams of East Prairie, soloist.

Preceding the bride down the aisle were the flower girl, Ashliegh Williams and ringbearer, Elliott Williams of Charleston, niece and nephew of the bride.

Presented in marriage by her uncle, Judge Elmo B. Hunter of Kansas City, the bride selected for her wedding a formal gown of ivory silk georgette, combined with alencon lace, posed over silk peau de soie. The basque-styled bodice featured a slight hi-rise overlaid entirely with alencon lace, embellished with seed pearls and crystal baquettes. The neckline was fashioned in Victorian styling and the long gossamer Bishops sleeves were closed at the wrist with handmade silk buttons and loops on deep lace Camelot cuffs.

The voluminous A-line skirt swept into a chapel length train. Her headdress was an alencon lace calot, heavily beaded in pearls and crystals, to which was attached a formal length veil of silk illusion, accented with motifs of re-embroidered alencon lace.

Attending her sister as matron-of- honor was Mrs. Dabney McMurray of Charleston. Serving as bridesmaids were Mrs. David Williams of Charleston and Mrs. Jim Winchester of East Prairie, sisters of the bride, Lori Henderson of Scottsbluff, Neb., Ann Munday of Hopkinsville, Ky., Mrs. Henry Holden of Memphis, Tenn. and Janie Britt of East Prairie, sorority sisters, Donna Pope of East Prairie and Miss Shapley Harris of Jackson, Miss., cousin of the groom.

The groom chose his father as best man. Groomsmen were Bob and Joe Graves of Lake Cormorant, Miss., his brothers, Charles B. Graves Jr. of Tunica, Miss., his cousin, Bill Allen of Belgoni, Miss., William McAdoo of Union City, Tenn., Charles Harris of Greenwood, Miss. Charles Capps III of Cleveland, Miss., Robert Carson of Marks, Miss., fraternity brothers, and John Nolen Canon Jr. of Tunica, Miss.

Parents' problems affect daughter

Dear Open Mind:

Why should I, a woman of 40, with husband, children, career, and friends of my own, feel guilty every time I talk to my parents? My father is an alcoholic in his 70's. My mother babies him, but talks of nothing else — how badly he behaves — how much she needs my help.

I have given them literature; I have made appointments for them. I pushed my father into A.A. and my mother into Al-Anon. They make a token visit and then give up, saying, "It is hopeless."

When my father is drunk, there is no talking to him at all; when he is sober, he acts as if nothing were wrong. My mother insists she and I go along with that play-acting. I am dutiful with invitations, with money, with sympathy. Yet I am a nervous wreck every time I am in their company. Even a phone call from my mother sends me into

GUILTY FEELINGS

Ambivalence

Dear Guilty Feelings:

Your guilty feelings are possibly the result of ambivalent feelings toward your parents. You must feel frustrated, angry, disgusted and helpless regarding your father's alcoholism, mother's constant complaints and their unwillingness to follow through consistently on your efforts to help them. As a good dutiful daughter, you believe you should only love and respect your parents, and your negative feelings produce your guilt. There may be additional guilt from concern that you are neglecting your husband, children, career and friends by spending so much time helping your parents.

Let me assure you that such negative feelings are normal in your situation and do not mean you love your parents less. It is evident that you are a concerned, conscientious daughter who tried to help your parents with the appropriate resources (A.A. and Al-Anon). Your efforts were unsuccessful because they were not motivated for this help. You are NOT responsible for their behavior and CANNOT force them to accept help.

Continue to stress your concern and love for them. If your guilt feelings persist, a United Way family agency counselor could help you resolve these feelings and offer ways for a better relationship with your parents.

Your parents are fortunate to have a daughter, who has such a strong desire to help them.

Join Al-Anon

Dear Guilty Feelings:

Alcoholism, one of the most serious social medical problems in the United States (with 9 million alcoholics who affect at least three or four other individuals, especially their family members), is one problem that almost every family confronts today. First, you should realize that the presence of an alcoholic in the family affects all members of the family. The relatives of alcoholics can become as sick as the alcoholic.

Given the fact that you are a "nervous wreck" because of the situation with your parents, I would strongly urge you to contact Al-Anon (314) 645-1572 and to become a member of this group. You will find in this organization other people who have faced the problem of alcoholism in the family.

You must realize that your father, in the final analysis, must make the decision to do something about his alcoholism. Your mother also desperately needs to join Al-Anon to better understand her family situation. "Token visits" will not be sufficient.

Your "play-acting" along with your mother's that there is nothing wrong in the family only intensifies the problem. Your father's alcoholism problem, from the experience that thousands of others have had with AA and Al-Anon, is not going to be resolved by your providing money and sympathy and invitations, which make you only part and parcel of reenforcing the alcoholism of your father.

Your letter indicates that you are becoming "sick", and, as hard as it is to say, what you are doing now in coping with this situation may result in your becoming a secondary casualty of your father's alcoholism. I would advise you to immediately join Al-Anon so that you may resolve your own guilty feelings and obtain a better understanding of the disease process of alcoholism and what it does socially, psychologically, and physically to all individuals caught up in a situation such as yours. You must accept the fact that all the sympathy and money in the world is not going to change the family situation unless your mother and father themselves want to change their behavior.

Last Christmas a friend sent us a bottle of Vanilla Cordial she had made. Somehow or other it was shoved far back in a corner cupboard and forgotten. Six months later we cleaned the cupboard and found the bottle. Remembering we had a package of black mission figs at hand, we chanced anointing them with the Cordial. The result was delicious. You may want to consider making a batch for serving or giving at holiday time.

VANILLA FIGS

1 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1½ cups water
1 vanilla bean, split lengthwise
1¾ cups light rum
1 pound black mission figs

In a medium saucepan over low heat stir together the sugars, water and vanilla bean until sugars dissolve; bring to a boil; simmer for 5 minutes. Cool. Stir in the rum. Turn figs into a crock or jar (at least 1½ quarts). Add rum mixture, including the vanilla bean. Cover and let stand at room temperature for at least 2 weeks before serving as an accompaniment to meat or poultry.

½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup granulated sugar

1 large egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup commercial sour cream
1 cup quick-cooking oats

Sift together the flour, baking soda and salt. Coat dates with ¼ cup of this mixture. Cream butter and sugars; beat in egg and vanilla; blend in flour mixture, in several additions, alternately with sour cream. Stir in coated dates and the oats. Drop by level tablespoonfuls, a few inches apart, onto lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes. Let stand 30 seconds before removing to wire racks to cool. Store between sheets of wax paper or plastic wrap, tightly covered. Makes about 5 dozen.

Families who move should examine schools closely

CHICAGO (AP) — "Schools remain the single most important factor in a family's choice of one community over another when people are looking for a new home," says Dr. Kenton E. Stephens, an educational specialist with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

Recent Census Bureau figures indicate that about half (46.5 per cent) of all U.S. households move every five years. An estimated 500,000 of these moves each year are job related and many involve families with school-age children, according to the head of a nationwide organization of real estate brokers.

"We recently surveyed a number of leading educators to determine ways in which the quality and style of a community's school system can be best evaluated," says William A. Ellis, president of RELO, a home referral service made up of 850 brokers who specialize in family relocation services.

Many of the educators queried agree that parents are concerned about quality education but caution that too few know how to assess a school system properly, Ellis reports.

HEW's Stephens, former superintendent of the Oak Park, Ill., public schools, says that "compatibility" is the single most important quality to look for in any school system.

"People should seek out schools that reflect the particular set of values they hold," he advises.

"You can find a school system that is completely oriented towards high academic standards, for instance, but this approach may de-emphasize the humanistic qualities some parents consider important for their children. If, however, a family wants academic excellence to the exclusion of all else, parents should look for scholastic emphasis in choosing the school community," Stephens suggests.

To properly gauge schools, Stephens encourages parents to talk with teachers, principals, and with some of the people in the community. He also advises checking into the availability, quality and scope of programs — music, art, dance or automechanics — that are important to parents and their children.

Sift together the flour, baking soda and salt. Coat dates with ¼ cup of this mixture. Cream butter and sugars; beat in egg and vanilla; blend in flour mixture, in several additions, alternately with sour cream. Stir in coated dates and the oats. Drop by level tablespoonfuls, a few inches apart, onto lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes. Let stand 30 seconds before removing to wire racks to cool. Store between sheets of wax paper or plastic wrap, tightly covered. Makes about 5 dozen.

Families who move should examine schools closely

CHICAGO (AP) — "Schools remain the single most important factor in a family's choice of one community over another when people are looking for a new home," says Dr. Kenton E. Stephens, an educational specialist with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

Recent Census Bureau figures indicate that about half (46.5 per cent) of all U.S. households move every five years. An estimated 500,000 of these moves each year are job related and many involve families with school-age children, according to the head of a nationwide organization of real estate brokers.

"We recently surveyed a number of leading educators to determine ways in which the quality and style of a community's school system can be best evaluated," says William A. Ellis, president of RELO, a home referral service made up of 850 brokers who specialize in family relocation services.

Many of the educators queried agree that parents are concerned about quality education but caution that too few know how to assess a school system properly, Ellis reports.

HEW's Stephens, former superintendent of the Oak Park, Ill., public schools, says that "compatibility" is the single most important quality to look for in any school system.

"People should seek out schools that reflect the particular set of values they hold," he advises.

"You can find a school system that is completely oriented towards high academic standards, for instance, but this approach may de-emphasize the humanistic qualities some parents consider important for their children. If, however, a family wants academic excellence to the exclusion of all else, parents should look for scholastic emphasis in choosing the school community," Stephens suggests.

To properly gauge schools, Stephens encourages parents to talk with teachers, principals, and with some of the people in the community. He also advises checking into the availability, quality and scope of programs — music, art, dance or automechanics — that are important to parents and their children.

The pastor speaks

Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright

By ARTHUR C. FULBRIGHT, Th.D.

Good stewards are good evangelists. This is often true through unintentional actions. We claim to be Christians. When we hear the word Christian, what kind of image pops into our mind's eye? Is it a happy, smiling person? Or is it a sour, gruff, cantankerous old goat we think of? We need to answer these questions by looking at what we are.

If we claim to be Christian, we are a walking, talking, working, driving advertisement for our faith. Now what do we see in the mirror? Is it a happy person or an old goat?

So often we forget that we are called upon to be good stewards of our faith all of the time. Those who have not yet accepted Christ as their Savior are looking at us. They are trying to decide if they want to respond to Christ's call to them. They are looking for a clue. What does it mean to give my life to Christ? Our behavior can give them that clue, can answer their questions, can tip the scales one way or the other.

As I look at some "Christians," I see 42 reasons why I do not want to be one if they are an example of what being a Christian is all about. They are chronic complainers. They are always bickering at the church. They cheat in their business. They drive as if they owned the road. They cheat on their spouses. They sit piously in church on Sunday morning.

Now where are we? If honest, we must admit we tend to be on that list or one like it. We need to live as if the whole world were watching us to see what a Christian is.

What kind of an image are you?

What kind of steward are you?

Spa shapes up for research

ZZYZX, Calif. (AP) — This abandoned desert town, intended by its founder to be literally the last word in health spas, is getting a new lease on life as a research center.

Zzyzx (pronounced Zye-zix) was built in 1944 on federal property near Soda Dry Lake in the Mojave Desert about 200 miles east of Los Angeles by Curtis Howe Springer, who called himself the "last of the old-time medicine men."

With the help of workers from Los Angeles' Skid Row, Springer built a two-story hotel called "The Castle," groups of cottages, a community dining hall, a church, a printing plant, food production area, hot baths, shops and a swimming pool.

He picked the odd name to make it the last word in the English language. It still appears on road signs pointing there from the Las Vegas, Nev., to Los Angeles highway.

But Springer himself is gone — evicted in 1974 by federal marshals and sent to jail for several months after conviction for illegally using federal property and false advertising of health food products he claimed would cure everything from sore toes to cancer. Springer, now 80, lives in Las Vegas.

Now Zzyzx is being converted into an education and research center under an arrangement between a consortium of seven Southern California colleges and universities and the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

Refinish that 'ugly' trunk

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Old trunks are among the most desirable items being sought by the tag sale set, who have discovered their usefulness in solving storage problems.

They are used at the foot of beds, in the nursery, and have even gone off to college dorms.

Finding just the right trunk has become a real scavenger hunt as neighbors try to outdo one another in refinishing them. Until a few years ago, only the smaller, older trunks were being sought, especially for homes furnished in antiques. But there just aren't enough of the bridal variety around, so many women are refinishing the larger trunks to look old. One woman "distressed" a trunk for a beautiful look. It had so many gouges and dents, she had no alternative, she said.

But gouges and dents can be filled up if you don't mind spending a little time. Paint experts suggest big gouges or pores can be filled with paste wood that has been thinned to the consistency suggested by the manufacturer. The paste is brushed on and allowed to set until it loses its gloss. Then burlap or coarse sandpaper is wiped across it to distribute the paste into the grain. After drying it for 24 hours, it is sanded with medium paper — in the direction of the grain — to remove excess filler.

All straps, wooden knobs and other pieces of hardware should be removed from the trunk before it is refinished. It may be simpler to mask the hinges if the trunk is old. To get a trunk down to its bare wood surface use a coarse sandpaper in the direction of the wood grain. After that use a medium grade and then a fine grade sandpaper. Remove all traces of sandpaper dust with a cloth or a vacuum brush.

If paint remover is used, put it on heavily and soak it for perhaps 30 minutes, the paint people suggest. If the bare wood doesn't begin to show, you may need another coat of the remover, which might be washed with lukewarm water after another 30 minutes.

Some people like to stain the wood after a fine sanding. It should be applied with a lint free cloth or a bristle brush. The stain is applied to the sides of the chest first, then the top, using either pigmented oil stain or a combination stain sealer. Brush on the stain, a thin coat if you want a light stain, with average smooth strokes and let it penetrate into the wood. When the stain dries to a dull tone, wipe with a clean cloth.

However, after cleaning the piece, the restorer may discover the wood isn't all that great, and that's where "distressing" the wood even further may make it look like an antique piece. Worm holes done with an ice pick, and hitting the wood in certain places with a bunch of keys or an old chain, are among the methods some people use.

While distressing old furniture is usually an involved process, it can be made a simple process on a trunk because it need not look a certain age. A dark paint is put on first — a brown color, rubbed into the wood. The next day white paint is brushed lightly over the brown. While it is drying the paint is rubbed with a cheese cloth so that it leaves a streaked effect with brown showing through. When it is dry, a blue or green or red paint is put on a cloth and rubbed lightly over the whole thing, and then quickly rubbed off. The effect should look old, but you should practice on a piece of wood first. This is a quick method that did achieve results for one person who had a knack. In any event, a trunk can be a fun place to experiment. Not much harm is done if you make a mistake.

Alsatian good wine

By TOM HOGE

The wine of Alsace has been described as German wine with the sugar left out. But these dry, fresh, fruity offerings have more going for them than that.

Unlike most French wines, those of Alsace are named according to the type of grape from which they are vinted, rather than the property on which they are grown.

The export of these sprightly wines has been limited to three types: Riesling, Sylvaner and Gewurztraminer. All are sold in green, fluted bottles like those used for German wines.

Riesling, the oldest species in Alsace, probably comes the closest to being catalogued as a fine wine. It makes an excellent accompaniment to oysters, fish and most other types of seafood. Dry and fruity, it is often described as elegant.

Sylvaner is more modest. It is an attractive, light luncheon wine with a pale, green-gold color and a pleasant bouquet. Sylvaner has been described as the maid-of-all-work of Alsatian wines. Nicely tart, it is often served as the first wine at an Alsatian dinner, as a sort of buildup for the main wine of the evening which is usually Riesling.

Gewurztraminer has been labeled the most individual white wine in France. Made from a small grape with a musky flavor, this wine is generally dry like its two sisters. It has a high alcoholic content for an Alsatian wine, sometimes approaching 14 per cent. It is an excellent accompaniment to such highly spiced dishes as curry. It is also good with meat and cheeses.

Hand in hand with Alsatian wine goes the cookery of this ancient French province bordering on the Rhine. It has been said that the cooking of Alsace shows what a French artist can do with German ideas. Sauerkraut, for instance, becomes choucroute and takes on a gourmet quality. It took an Alsatian wine to help perform this bit of magic. Here's the recipe for one of my favorites, Choucroute Garnie a l'Alsacienne.

- 1 medium onion, chopped fine
- 2 tablespoons goose fat or lard
- 1 pound sauerkraut
- 1 apple, peeled and cut in pieces
- 10 juniper berries in cheesecloth bag
- 3 ounces Gewurztraminer
- 1¾ cups beef consomme
- 1 pound smoked pork, shoulder meat, cubed
- 1 pound salt pork loin cutlets
- 3 knockwurst sliced
- 1¼ tablespoons Kirsch

Saute onion in a casserole with the fat. Add sauerkraut and cook 5 minutes. Add apple and berries. Add wine and consomme. Cover and simmer 2½ hours. One hour before serving add smoked pork, salt pork and knockwurst. Thirty minutes before serving add Kirsch. Serve with boiled potatocs. Good with a chilled Gewurztraminer. Serves 6-8.

Remember the car?

By ERMA BOMBECK

I don't pretend to be any great shakes on the economy, but when I read that car loans are being extended to 48 months, a shiver went up and down my spine.

For years now, Americas have been running out of car before they ran out of payments. Back in the '40s you were pushing your luck to sustain four wheels through 24 months. Then in the '50s someone decided to extend the payments over a 36-month period. (Wed paid on our babies that long — but at least they ran.)

What we're dealing with here is Detroit's Law: "If God had meant for you to ride around in a car, He'd have recalled your feet!"

When a car comes off the assembly line, someone stamps an expiration date somewhere under the hood. It is no coincidence that the date is one day after the warranty on everything expires. The car has no interest whatsoever in your personal problems. It does not care if your three-year- old toes in . . . that you became pregnant two days before your health insurance went into effect. . . that you have a sudsing problem in your front yard just over your septic tank. When it is time to do, the car simply coughs and dies.

For you Future Shock fans, the 48-month loan means that in another ten years you could conceivably be paying for a car that you don't even remember.

"It's the car payment," I answer.

"What car?"

"You remember. The brown station wagon with the wood on it. Don't you have a note on it in the budget book?"

"This one?" he asks, plucking a piece of paper out of the drawer. "It says,,'See transmission.'"

"Here's another reminder on that car. It says, 'See battery.'"

"I sure wish I could remember the car," he mumbles.

"I know you'd remember if you saw it again. We had it when the kids were small and there was a big space in the back where we used to carry all kinds of junk — playpens, strollers, toys"

"Yeash. . . yeah. . . I think I've locked in a picture. It was a four-door and was a real engineering bow-wow."

Just then our son somes in to borrow the car keys for the current car. As we walk to the driveway with him, my husband gestures to the five clunkers parked there.

"Just think, son, someday all of this will be yours."

What's the law?

The case of the sloppy seller

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Roscoe, selling a rug cleaning compound door-to-door, found that making sales was like pulling teeth — so he plied his trade like a dentist and gave his customers a lot of gas.

He orated about the miracluous cleaning powers of his compound, rhapsodized about the ease of its application, and then requested permission to demonstrate his product.

In fact, by the time Roscoe finished his sales pitch to Vilma one morning, she didn't know whether it was opportunity or a salesman who had knocked at her door. Consequently, with piqued curiosity, she readily consented to the demonstration.

Entering the partment, Roscoe dumped an ashtray full of cigarette butts onto Vilma's new dining room rug and added some stale beer, a bowl of left-tover dog food and various other tidbits that he found lounging around in the kitchen.

When he appliced his cleaning compound, however, the only thing that disappeared was the smile on Roscoe's face. A As for the rug, it was one big globby mess.

"He was as coo-coo as a pigeon," she complained to a judge. "He submerged my rug under a pile of garbage."

"My compound always worked before," responded puzzled Roscoe. "And I just don't know what went wrong. What I do know is that Vilma consented to the demonstration, and therefore accepted the risk that she might not be satisfied with the results. Therefore, she can't hold me responsible."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Roscoe pay Vilma for destroying her rug?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that when a salesman negligently spoils a rug while demonstrating a cleaning compound, he's responsible for the damage caused, regardless of the consent of the owner of the rug to the demonstration.

Questions about food

Questions from readers about food and diet are welcomed. Letters should be addressed to: Dr. James W. Nordstrom, Cooperative Extension, Lincoln University, Jefferson City, MO 65101.

Q. Is yogurt a good food to eat for losing weight?

A. The food value of yogurt depends largely on its primary ingredients, which may be skim milk, whole or evaporated milk (or combinations of these), and also on the sugar and fruit that may be added to it. Yogurt will always contain more calories than skim milk because of the extra fat and sugar it contains. A cup of yogurt made from partially skimmed milk has about 120 calories, while a cup of skim milk contains 88 calories.

Yogurt is a nutritious food since it is a milk product and tends to resemble whole milk in nutrient composition. If you find that a cup of yogurt forms the basis for a satisfying lunch it may indeed be useful in your reducing diet.

One should remember that yogurt is not a complete food, since it does not contain enough iron, vitamins A and C and B vitamins to provide a balanced meal in itself. This is true even if fruit is added, although vitamin C content is thereby improved.

Whole grain or enriched breads and cereals as well as fruits and vegetables belong in weight control diets because they add important vitamins and minerals to balance with milk or milk products. Lean meat (including fish and poultry) and legumes (beans, soybeans, peas) also are desireable for complete, balanced nutrtion since these foods add iron along with quality protein.

The important principle for weight control is that total caloric intake should not exceed energy used in daily activities. A nutritious, balanced diet should be eaten, but the quantity of the food usually must be restricted. Limiting food rich in energy such as fats of all kinds, cream, rich desserts and alcoholic beverages is also essential because a relatively small amount of such foods can add a lot of calories to diets.

Another thing that many people could do to lose weight is to exercise more and thereby increase energy expenditure. A change in the daily routine to include more walking and less riding may be sufficient to accomplish this. The added exercise is also likely to improve muscle tone, blood circulation and general health as well.

Q. A friend of mine drinks a couple tablespoons of vinegar after every meal to help "dissolve away" fat. Please comment.

A. The only thing your friend is accomplishing by drinking vinegar is to add a few calories to each meal (about two calories per tablespoon of vinegar). Nothing you can eat or drink will cause body fat to "dissolve away". Fat was deposited to serve as reserve energy and will not be used up unless energy consumed in food and drink is less than needed to support body needs, as stated above.

Q. I find it easier to stay on my diet if I eat a tablespoon of mayonnaise after my noon and evening meals, since I seem to become less hungry.

A. The mayonnaise is high in fat and therefore has some satiety value. This is because fat slows stomach emptying and hense contributes to a feeling of "fullness".

Research indicates that a certain amount of fat in reducing diets is helpful in decreasing hunger and excessive fatigue. About 35 percent of the total calories may be furnished in the form of fat although the diet must still be balanced for protein, minerals and vitamins. One must be sure to account for the high calorie value of fats, of course. Mayonnaise is 80 percent fat and a single tablespoon contains about 100 calories.

Most children can achieve

CHICAGO (AP) — When conditions for learning are favorable, almost all children in a classroom can master the lesson, says Benjamin S. Bloom, professor of education at the University of Chicago.

Although the notion that practically all students can achieve in the classroom isn't new, Bloom says it has only recently gained acceptance among educators.

Bloom said that studies he has conducted over the past decade have indicated that as much as 95 per cent of a class can grasp the lesson under the right conditions.

The conventional method of group instruction in the schools, he explains, is "likely to be very effective for some learners and ineffective for others. Teachers unconsciously direct their teaching to some students and ignore others."

The educator says that favorable conditions exist when students can master one learning task as a whole class — before the entire group moves on to the next lesson. This approach, Bloom notes, requires a "self-correcting" mechanism which enables students and teachers to correct any errors in learning before they are compounded later.

Extra time and help outside the regular classroom for students slow in learning the lesson can help result in greater student achievement, he adds.

'First 50 years' tonight

NBC, which pioneered network broadcasting in this country starting Nov. 15, 1926, will celebrate its 50th year of broadcasting service to the nation with an unprecedented four-hour, prime-time special, "The First Fifty Years," to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network tonight (7-11 p.m. NYT) as an element in "The Big Event" series.

In announcing initial plans, Herbert S. Schlosser, President and Chief Operating Officer, NBC, said:

"That historic broadcast of Nov. 15, 1926, was heard from New York to Kansas City, reaching 25 stations in 21 cities. It inaugurated network broadcasting and opened the way for the nationwide, early-morning to late-night programming which is available to Americans today. The growth of broadcasting, from the early crystal radios to today's portable color TV sets, has reflected the growth and continuing vitality of this nation durin the past half-century."

The special colorcast will focus on some of the great moments in the history of NBC entertainment, news and sports and on some of the people who have been national favorites on radio or television via NBC.

Schlosser added: "We hope to share with viewers some of the highlights of our past, when people would sit close to a radio or watch the screen of an early TV set to listen to or watch programs and people associated with NBC. The long list includes such performes as Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, Groucho Marx, Jimmy Durante, Edgar Bergen, Rudy Vallee, Jack Benny, Fibber McGee and Molly, George Burns and Gracie Allen,, Tallulah Bankhead, the NBC Symphony Orchestra conducted by Arturo Toscanini, performances by the NBC Opera Company, H. V. Kaltenborn, Chet Huntley, and many more.

"At the same time, we will survey the contemporary history of the network and view some of the personalities popular with today's audiences, including Bob Hope, Johnny Carson, Dean Martin, Redd Foxx, Freddie Prinze, Perry Como and David Brinkley.

Greg Garrison, producer and director of many memorable NBC telecasts during the past three decades, is the show's executive producer. Under his guidance, research teams in Burbank, Calif., New York City and Chicago are gathering material for the broadcast which covers both radio and television.

Producers for the project are Lee Hale and Chet Hagan. Orson Welles will narrate the four-hour special and work as a creative consultant along with Gene Kelly. "The First Fifty Years" will be written by Abby Mann. Among the hosts will be Johnny Carson, Dean Martin, Gene Kelly, Angie Dickinson, Jack Albertson, George C. Scott, George Burns and Freddie Prinze with others to be announced.

Said Garrison: "We will go from that first network broadcast in 1926 to the present. The first broadcast originated at the old Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City, at Fifth Avenue and 34th Street, now the site of the Empire State Building. It included remote pickups -- Mary Garden sang from Chicago and Will Rogers delivered a monologue from Independence, Kan.; the comedy team of Weber and Fields was there; Dr. Walter Damrosch conducted the New York Symphony Orchestra; there were dance bands, opera singers and other participants. It was quite a night! We'll also recall the first cross-country broadcast of a Rose Bowl game. It took place Jan. 1, 1927, with Graham McNamee describing the action between Stanford and Alabama.

" 'The First Fifty Years' will not be presented in chronological order. We will have portions devoted to separate broadcast areas, such as news, entertainment and sports, with personalities from each field.

Some of the memorable highlights of NBC's 50 years of broadcast service to the nation -- to be saluted in "The First Fifty Years," the four-hour special which will be "The Big Event" on the NBC Television Network, tonight (7-11 p.m. NYT) -- have been provided by Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca (top left) on NBC-TV; Groucho Marx (top right) on both NBC Radio and TV; Bob Hope and Jerry Colonna (with mustache) on both NBC Radio and TV (bottom left); and maestro Arturo Toscanini, who led the NBC Symphony Orchestra in concerts broadcast on NBC Radio (some were simulcast on NBC-TV).

Quick takes

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Broderick Crawford will play the part of J. Edgar Hoover in a new movie about the life of the late FBI director.

Called "The Private Files of J. Edgar Hoover," the movie also stars Jose Ferrer, Michael Parks, Ronee Blakely, Rip Torn and Celeste Holm. Larry Cohen is producer and director of the film, which is due for release in April.

CHICAGO (AP) — Saul Bellow, winner of this year's Nobel prize for literature, has been chosen to deliver the 1977 Jefferson lecture of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

His selection was announced Wednesday by the agency's chairman, Dr. Ronald S. Berman, at the University of Chicago. The lecture, which carries a $10,000 stipend, will be in two parts to be delivered in Washington and Chicago next March.

Bellow's theme will be the American writer and his material.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Eldridge Cleaver, 41, the former Black Panther who ended his seven-year fugitive exile abroad one year ago today, is observing the anniversary by returning to Paris.

A spokesman said Cleaver would spend "about 10 days to two weeks meeting with publishers in Paris and Germany who have the European rights to his books."

Thanksgiving for Waltons

THE WALTON'S Emmy winning two-hour special, "The Thanksgiving Story," will be reprised on the CBS Television Network on Thanksgiving Day, at 8 P.M., CNYT. The highly-praised drama, which won an Emmy Award for writer Joanna Lee, tells the story of an accident that blurs John-Boy's vision and threatens his future.

The Holiday special takes the Walton family through a crisis in which they realize a much deeper appreciation of the meaning of the country's oldest holiday. John-Boy seems to have much to be grateful for as Thanksgiving approaches. His grades have earned him the right to try to qualify for a scholarship and his special girlfriend Jenny, played by Sian Barbara Allen, is coming home after a year's absence. But the accident, a blow on the head from a loose pulley belt in his father's lumber mill, blurs his vision just as he is about to take his tests. Although he can't study, John-Boy pretends not to be injured and takes the exam anyway, but is unable to read the questions and is taken to the hospital.

Through a series of anguished moments, during which John Walton blames himself for the accident, the Waltons ultimately arrive at the realization that with their health and their love for each other, nothing else is needed to make Thanksgiving a truly meaningful occasion.

"The Thanksgiving Story" was directed by Philip Leacock. Lee Rich was the executive producer with Robert L. Jacks the producer. The drama is based on a story by Earl Hammer, creator and executive story consultant of the Emmy and Peabody Award-winning series, "The Waltons."

'First 50 years' tonight

NBC, which pioneered network broadcasting in this country starting Nov. 15, 1926, will celebrate its 50th year of broadcasting service to the nation with an unprecedented four-hour, prime-time special, "The First Fifty Years," to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network tonight (7-11 p.m. NYT) as an element in "The Big Event" series.

In announcing initial plans, Herbert S. Schlosser, President and Chief Operating Officer, NBC, said:

"That historic broadcast of Nov. 15, 1926, was heard from New York to Kansas City, reaching 25 stations in 21 cities. It inaugurated network broadcasting and opened the way for the nationwide, early-morning to late-night programming which is available to Americans today. The growth of broadcasting, from the early crystal radios to today's portable color TV sets, has reflected the growth and continuing vitality of this nation durin the past half-century."

The special colorcast will focus on some of the great moments in the history of NBC entertainment, news and sports and on some of the people who have been national favorites on radio or television via NBC.

Schlosser added: "We hope to share with viewers some of the highlights of our past, when people would sit close to a radio or watch the screen of an early TV set to listen to or watch programs and people associated with NBC. The long list includes such performes as Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, Groucho Marx, Jimmy Durante, Edgar Bergen, Rudy Vallee, Jack Benny, Fibber McGee and Molly, George Burns and Gracie Allen,, Tallulah Bankhead, the NBC Symphony Orchestra conducted by Arturo Toscanini, performances by the NBC Opera Company, H. V. Kaltenborn, Chet Huntley, and many more.

"At the same time, we will survey the contemporary history of the network and view some of the personalities popular with today's audiences, including Bob Hope, Johnny Carson, Dean Martin, Redd Foxx, Freddie Prinze, Perry Como and David Brinkley.

Greg Garrison, producer and director of many memorable NBC telecasts during the past three decades, is the show's executive producer. Under his guidance, research teams in Burbank, Calif., New York City and Chicago are gathering material for the broadcast which covers both radio and television.

Producers for the project are Lee Hale and Chet Hagan. Orson Welles will narrate the four-hour special and work as a creative consultant along with Gene Kelly. "The First Fifty Years" will be written by Abby Mann. Among the hosts will be Johnny Carson, Dean Martin, Gene Kelly, Angie Dickinson, Jack Albertson, George C. Scott, George Burns and Freddie Prinze with others to be announced.

Said Garrison: "We will go from that first network broadcast in 1926 to the present. The first broadcast originated at the old Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City, at Fifth Avenue and 34th Street, now the site of the Empire State Building. It included remote pickups -- Mary Garden sang from Chicago and Will Rogers delivered a monologue from Independence, Kan.; the comedy team of Weber and Fields was there; Dr. Walter Damrosch conducted the New York Symphony Orchestra; there were dance bands, opera singers and other participants. One year ago: The Vietnamese governments in Hanoi and Saigon agreed on a speedy merger as the key to unification of the country under Communist rule.

Thought for today: Remember, it is as easy to marry a rich woman as a poor woman. — William Thackeray, English writer, 1811-1863.

B.B. King pushes blues

NEW YORK (AP — Albert King has got the blues, but he's not complaining. And neither are the enthusiastic, young audiences who hoot and holler for more songs of woe from the 52-year-old entertainer.

King travels in his own double-decker bus, toting a gleaming, V-shaped guitar named "Lucy." Together they produce gut bucket songs of rejected love and what it means to be down and out.

"Blues will be here as long as people come into the world and have problems," says the 255-pound, 6-foot-4 singer. "The blues will be in their laps and at their front doors."

Albert King is fighting the current disco sound mania and trying to put the blues back in the mainstream of American music. He seems to be making progress. His current album is climbing the charts, and he's making appearances to packed clubs and halls all over the nation.

His hushed voice belies his massive frame as he speaks about this at his agent's midtown Manhattan office. He sits on a brown leather couch near stacks of used press releases and new record albums, beneath a graphic of songstress Peggy Lee.

Every now and then he chews on the end of a multi-colored pipe — his "peacemaker," as he calls it. He rarely puts it down. Even during a performance King struts on stage with Lucy in his arms and his peacemaker in his mouth, sending tiny smoke clouds past his rose tinted glasses.

"When I was young we couldn't afford a Christmas tree," he said. "We were real, real poor. I mean really poor."

"You know," he said, still in his hushed southern tones, "all I really want now is to have enough money every December so I don't have to run up and down the road on gigs to make it."

Why December?

"Well," he said, "about two weeks before Christmas, I go through the South and find some real poor families who can't have a Christmas. You know, where the children don't have clothes or food.

"I spend about $1,500 each for maybe two or three familes. They don't even know my name. I just tell them my name is Poor Slim. When we were homeless and poor, a few people came to our rescue, and I'm going to make it up to somebody else."

CBS... "The Mysterious Island' from Jules Vern class

"The Mysterious Island," animated adaptation of Jules Verne's classic adventure tale, which is considered to be a sequel to his landmark science fiction novel "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," will be rebroadcast on "Famous Classic Tales," Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 25 (11:00 - 12:00 PM) on the CBS Television Network.

Kenner, Inc., represented by Sive Associates, Inc., is the sponsor of the "Famous Classic Tales" series.

"The Mysterious Island," a production of Australian- based Air Programs International (API), like its predecessor, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," exemplifies Verne's gift for combining adventure with the popular science of his day to create in the mid-1800's imaginary prototypes of 20th century inventions.

It is primarily a tale of survival and a celebration of the adaptability and ingenuity of five refugees from a Confederate prison during the American Civil War. After escaping in a balloon which lands them on an uncharted island, they battle the elements, pirates and a volcano with the help of Capt. Nemo and his submarine, the Nautilis.

Walter J. Hucker is executive producer of the special, which was originally presented on the Network Nov. 15, 1975.

"The Mysterious Island' from Jules Vern classk

"The Mysterious Island," animated adaptation of Jules Verne's classic adventure tale, which is considered to be a sequel to his landmark science fiction novel "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," will be rebroadcast on "Famous Classic Tales," Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 25 (11:00 - 12:00 PM) on the CBS Television Network.

Kenner, Inc., represented by Sive Associates, Inc., is the sponsor of the "Famous Classic Tales" series.

"The Mysterious Island," a production of Australian- based Air Programs International (API), like its predecessor, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," exemplifies Verne's gift for combining adventure with the popular science of his day to create in the mid-1800's imaginary prototypes of 20th century inventions.

It is primarily a tale of survival and a celebration of the adaptability and ingenuity of five refugees from a Confederate prison during the American Civil War. After escaping in a balloon which lands them on an uncharted island, they battle the elements, pirates and a volcano with the help of Capt. Nemo and his submarine, the Nautilis.

Walter J. Hucker is executive producer of the special, which was originally presented on the Network Nov. 15, 1975.

"Alice Through The Looking Glass"

Lewis Carroll's non-sensical classic about the other side of the mirror comes to life in a BBC version of "ALICE THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS," airing at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, November 27 and at 7 p.m. Wednesday, November 30 on KETC-TV, Channel 9.

The ninety- minute program is part of "Piccadilly Circus," a series which brings an anthology of British entertainment from the past ten years to American public television.

Responsible for the imaginative techniques used in the production was the late director, James MacTaggart. He faithfully recreates the world where flowers talk quite properly, cake is cut after it's passed around, jam is on the menu yester, and tomorrow, and Humpty Dumpty proves once more the superiority of un-birthday presents.

"Alice Through The Looking Glass"

Lewis Carroll's non-sensical classic about the other side of the mirror comes to life in a BBC version of "ALICE THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS," airing at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, November 27 and at 7 p.m. Wednesday, November 30 on KETC-TV, Channel 9.

The ninety-minute program is part of "Piccadilly Circus," a series which brings an anthology of British entertainment from the past ten years to American public television.

The original Tenniel illustrations for Carroll's book are used extensively in this production. Special effects utilize actors and miniature scenery to recreate the topsy-turvy world of Alice.

Responsible for the imaginative techniques used in the production was the late director, James MacTaggart. He faithfully recreates the world where flowers talk quite properly, cake is cut after it's passed around, jam is on the menu yester, and tomorrow, and Humpty Dumpty proves once more the superiority of unbirthday presents.

"The Seventh Seal" presented on Tuesday

Ingmar Bergman's internationally acclaimed film "The Seventh Seal" will be featured on the "PBS MOVIE THREATRE" at 9 p.m. Tuesday, November 23 on Channel 9.

Set in medieval Europe, "The Seventh Seal" depicts the travels of a knight (Max von Syndow) and his squire (Gunnar Bjornstrand), who wearily leave behind the Crusades only to return home to a plague-ridden Sweden. The film centers around a chess match between the knight and Death (Bengt Ekerot), and although the game is an ultimately futile one for the knight, it allows him to temporarily save an innocent family of traveling players.

"The Seventh Seal" was well received in the United States and Europe when it was first released in 1956, and was the Jury Prize Winner at the Cannes Film Festival in 1957. This Bergman classic was particularly popular with those filmgoers, philosophers, and theologians who saw a number of parallels between the film's apocalyptic terrors and philosophical themes and the sense of imminent destruction and alienation many people experienced in a contemporary post-World War II atomic age.

KETC...
Claudio Arrau soloist with New York Philharmonic

The New York Philharmonic is joined by world-famous French pianist, Claudio Arrau, on "LIVE FROM LINCOLN CENTER," airing at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, November 20, repeated at 8 p.m. Wednesday, November 24 on KETC-TV, Channel 9.

Raphael Kubelik conducts the performance, broadcast live from Avery Fisher Hall at the Lincoln Center in New York.

The program consists of Beethoven's Egmont Overture; Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3 in C Minor, Opus 37; and Dvorak's Symphony No. 9 in E Minor, Opus 95, more commonly known as the New Yorld Symphony.

KETC-TV and KWMU-FM intend to simulcast the live performance. Simulcasting is the simultaneous broadcast by a television station and an FM radio station, enabling viewers to watch dramatic and music performances with quality stereo sound. Simulcasting is still in the experimental stage. Technica difficulties have made a simulcast of the New York Philharmonic impossible. A piano recital by Andre Watts, airing at 2 p.m. Sunday, November 28, sill be simulcast on KETC-TV and KWMU-FM (90.7).

Irwin Allen's (producer of such disaster films as "The Poseidon Adventure" and "The Towering Inferno") newest production, "Flood!", a drama about the devastation of a small town following the collapse of an aging dam, will be colorcast Wednesdayf, Nov. 24 (7-9 p.m. CST), on "NBC Movie of the Week."

Robert Culp and Martin Milner, as helicopter pilots, head a cast that includes Carol Lynley, Richard Basehart, Teresa Wright, Barbara Hershey and Cameron Mitchell.

Despite the pleading of Paul Blake, who has seen signs that the dam is deteriorating, Mayor John Cutler resists efforts to open the flood gates and drain the lake so the dam can be repaired. Cutler is motivated by the fact that the lake and the tourists it attracts is the town's main source of revenue.

"Flood!", an Irwin Allen production in association with NBC-TV, was filmed on location in Eugene, Ore.

City slicker sleuths, small town cop collide

City slickers Delvecchio and Shonski are out of their element in the scorching hot, dusty little Arizona desert burg to which they have come to pick up an extradited prisoner, and they quickly learn how far out when they pick an ugly beef with the local police chief, on "Delvecchio," Sunday, Nov. 28 (9-10 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network. Robert Markowitz directed from a Steven Bochco script.

The prisoner, Sonny Youngellow, turns out to be a rather inoffensive Indian youth, and when humanistic Sgt. Delvecchio notes that Sonny has been roughed up by hardboiled police chief Jocko Brighton, he ssed red. The instinctive antagonism existing between the two city cops and the small-town cop erupts after Del and Shonski, with indefensible dumbness, enable Sonny to escape with Shonski's pistol and then are forced to seek help from Jocko.

Gene Hackman (left) winner of the Academy Award for Best Actor, and Eddie Egan, the real-life cop whom Hackman portrays, appear in "The French Connection," to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies," Wednesday, Nov. 24 (8:00-10:07 PM, CST) on the CBS Television Network.

City slickers Delvecchio and Shonski are out of their element in the scorching hot, dusty little Arizona desert burg to which they have come to pick up an extradited prisoner, and they quickly learn how far out when they pick an ugly beef with the local police chief, on "Delvecchio," Sunday, Nov. 28 (9-10 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network. Robert Markowitz directed from a Steven Bochco script.

The prisoner, Sonny Youngellow, turns out to be a rather inoffensive Indian youth, and when humanistic Sgt. Delvecchio notes that Sonny has been roughed up by hardboiled police chief Jocko Brighton, he ssed red. The instinctive antagonism existing between the two city cops and the small-town cop erupts after Del and Shonski, with indefensible dumbness, enable Sonny to escape with Shonski's pistol and then are forced to seek help from Jocko.

Gene Hackman (left) winner of the Academy Award for Best Actor, and Eddie Egan, the real-life cop whom Hackman portrays, appear in "The French Connection," to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies," Wednesday, Nov. 24 (8:00-10:07 PM, CST) on the CBS Television Network.

Prince Valiant

The Story of King Arthur

BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT STOOD IN THE BOW GAZING SOUTHWARD WHERE LIE THE MISTY ISLES, STILL HUNDREDS OF MILES AWAY..... BUT ALETA IS THERE.

AT LONG LAST THEY REACH PORT, BUT EVEN BEFORE THE SHIP IS MOORED VAL IS ON HIS WAY TO THE PALACE.

ALETA TIDIES HER HAIR WITH A TREMBLING HAND, ADJUSTS HER SCARF. "THIS TIME I WILL NOT BEHAVE LIKE A MOONSTRUCK MAID, BUT GREET HIM WITH THE DIGNITY THAT BECOMES A QUEEN."

BUT VAL COMES LEAPING UP THE STEPS, ARMS WIDE: "ALETA!" HE CRIES. SHE TAKES ONE DIGNIFIED STEP, THEN, THROWING HER RESOLVE TO THE WINDS, THROWS HERSELF INTO HIS ARMS.

HOW WONDERFUL IT IS TO BE WITH ONE'S LOVED ONES! NEVER AGAIN WILL HE LEAVE THESE DEAR ONES TO GO ADVENTURING. WHAT? NEVER!

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

If your child has outgrown the set of swings and you are thinking of giving it away — don't! It's very useful when giving backyard parties.

Remove the swings, leaving the "A" frame and crossbars. Across the center "A" bar, put one or two boards and drape them with a colorful sheet or other material. Presto! Your own counter for drinks. Across the top of the "A" frame, decorate with tiny twinkly lights, hanging bottles, large paper flowers, or anything that suits your fancy.

Zoraida Stokes

+ + +

Oh-h-h-h, indeed, it would! It's such a practical idea, too, because if you're like me, it seems I'm forever running out of table space when I have backyard parties, but I never thought of utilizing a set of swings.

How clever you are, Zoraida. Thanks from all of us.

Heloise

NO CRACKS, PLEASE!

DEAR HELOISE:

Helps prevent the plaster from cracking.

Mrs. George Gross

WHAT, AGAIN?!

DEAR HELOISE:

Do you ever get the feeling that the paperboy comes every other week to collect for the month? I've solved the problem by taping the little receipts to the kitchen calendar.

As I mutter my way to my wallet, I can reassure myself that I'm not going bananas...

Anne Gage

ANITA'S TRICK

DEAR HELOISE:

I thought my favorite purse was useless when I lost the ring that held the strap handle to the purse.

Anita Ali
Age 11

WHAT A LINE!

DEAR HELOISE:

I have bought, begged and borrowed various beads. Some with broken strings. Some without clasps. It is marvelous what one can come up with. Use your imagination.

Strands of beads can be bought to fill in so the strings can be long enough to go over the head. No clasps needed. Leave an inch after tying and stick the ends down into the closest bead. No needle is necessary either as the fishing line is stiff.

Florence B. Stevens

A SPICY STORY

DEAR HELOISE:

When I prepare one of the salad dressings from a dry mix, the oil separates and the vinegar and spices remain on the bottom.

To avoid this, I mix the dressing and then transfer it to an empty shaker-type vinegar bottle. As the dressing is shaken from the vinegar bottle onto the salad, it mixes itself.

Ruth Liotta

DEAR HELOISE:

I have found a way to keep my 2-year-old happy while I put groceries away after a long shopping trip.

I let him take all the grapes off the stems and put the grapes in a bowl to be washed.

Now he can help Mommy while I get my chores done. Also the grapes are so much easier for the whole family to eat this way.

Catherine Grace

FRILLY DILLY

DEAR HELOISE:

I have several of those old frilly garters that have been replaced by pantyhose.

I cut them down to size and resewed the ends and they serve as headbands or belts for my little girl's dolls.

She thinks they're super!

B. A. D.

LETTER RIP!

DEAR HELOISE:

At last! At last! I have a hint for your column.

If you have already sealed your letter and need to enclose another item before mailing, try opening the flap of the envelope (the overlapping one), with the corner of the card the utilities bill comes on, or one of the same type. (An index file card, for instance.)

Mrs. Keepem Komin

+ + +

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

There's something called "decency" that will prevail...

THE MIDNIGHT DUST

DEAR HELOISE:

I couldn't sleep last night and as I wandered through the hallway I noticed the walls were dusty.

I noticed a clean but old dust mop and thought it should clean the walls great. Well, by gosh, it's the fastest I ever cleaned or dusted walls. I did three rooms in just a few minutes.

It's the best idea I ever had!

Sleepless Gal

MOMMY'S ARTIST

DEAR HELOISE:

When sending gifts to relatives, I use my second grader's papers that she brings home from school for packing, instead of newspaper.

E. Langley

BLOT IT OUT!

DEAR AUNT HELOISE:

The other day I was looking for a blotter to use as a refill for my desk set, as I had no money to buy a new one at the time.

Then I saw an old poster I had which I wasn't using. I cut it down to size, put it into the leather blotter pad and I had a very pretty refill.

Was almost as good as the regular kind.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

If your child has outgrown the set of swings and you are thinking of giving it away — don't! It's very useful when giving backyard parties.

Remove the swings, leaving the "A" frame and crossbars. Across the center "A" bar, put one or two boards and drape them with a colorful sheet or other material. Presto! Your own counter for drinks. Across the top of the "A" frame, decorate with tiny twinkly lights, hanging bottles, large paper flowers, or anything that suits your fancy.

Makes a lovely conversation piece!

Zoraida Stokes

+ + +

Oh-h-h-h, indeed, it would! It's such a practical idea, too, because if you're like me, it seems I'm forever running out of table space when I have backyard parties, but I never thought of utilizing a set of swings.

How clever you are, Zoraida. Thanks from all of us.

Heloise

NO CRACKS, PLEASE!

DEAR HELOISE:

Helps prevent the plaster from cracking.

Mrs. George Gross

WHAT, AGAIN?!

DEAR HELOISE:

Do you ever get the feeling that the paperboy comes every other week to collect for the month? I've solved the problem by taping the little receipts to the kitchen calendar.

As I mutter my way to my wallet, I can reassure myself that I'm not going bananas...

Anne Gage

DEAR HELOISE:

I thought my favorite purse was useless when I lost the ring that held the strap handle to the purse.

Looking through my mother's junk drawer, I found a looseleaf metal ring and clamped it in place on the purse.

WHAT A LINE!

DEAR HELOISE:

I have bought, begged and borrowed various beads. Some with broken strings. Some without clasps. It is marvelous what one can come up with. Use your imagination.

Strands of beads can be bought to fill in so the strings can be long enough to go over the head. No clasps needed. Leave an inch after tying and stick the ends down into the closest bead. No needle is necessary either as the fishing line is stiff.

Florence B. Stevens

A SPICY STORY

DEAR HELOISE:

To avoid this, I mix the dressing and then transfer it to an empty shaker-type vinegar bottle. As the dressing is shaken from the vinegar bottle onto the salad, it mixes itself.

She's my daughter.

●Riddle-Me-This! What thrifty advice is suggested by the letters IOO? Give up? I owe nothing.

HAND 10 or 12 playing cards to a friend. Ask him to shuffle them, note the bottom card and pick a number at random from 1 to 10. Ask him to transfer that many cards from the top to the bottom of the pile. Have him deal the cards face down into another pile. Again have him transfer the same number of cards as before from the top to the bottom of the pile.

Now, as a ruse, ask him to hand you the same number as previously from the top of the stack. The card he noted at the bottom originally will be on top.
